Wake 'Leveled' By U. S. Army Bomber Force

HEADQUARTERS HAWAIIAN AIR FORCE, T. H., June 29.—(AP) Striking in the brilliant light of a full moon, U. S. Army bombers loosed a devastating raid last Saturday night on Japanese-held Wake Island. Their bombs "leveled" everything on the surface.

Headquarters of the Hawaiian Air Force announced the raid today after all of the planes had returned to their base. The number of bombers that participated in the long-range attack was not disclosed. There were no American casualties and only one plane received any damage, that being minor and resulting from a shell fragment.

Lieutenant T. N. Warren, (1781 Napier avenue), Macon, Ga., one of the navigators, said: "I'm ready to start out again tonight."

It was the second attack on the island since the Japanese seized it at high cost last December 23. The first was last February 24 by naval planes from an American task force which pounded shore installations to bits, damaged the landing area and wrecked several small boats.

Under Nimitz's Orders.

(In announcing last Saturday's raid, the Navy Department in Washington explained that the Army bombers operated under the general direction of Admiral Chester W. Nimitz as supreme commander in the mid-Pacific area.)

"We leveled everything on the surface and crippled this Japanese stepping stone in the Pacific at least until the Japs can repair the damage and fly in new planes," said Colonel Art W. Meehan, who piloted one of the bombers. Meehan is a former quarterback at West Point.

"We gave them everything we took over and all our planes returned without casualties. Only one plane was hit, by a fragment of anti-aircraft."

All Shared Credit.

"Credit was shared by all who went on the mission, but we cannot disclose all the names. I would give the most credit to the navigators who made a perilous flight—like picking up a handkerchief in the ocean."

"In fact, it probably was the longest range over-water bombing flight ever achieved. The navigation was so excellent that I amazed me, and I would have said it couldn't be done when they hit the corner of the tiny island as they said they would."

(Wake is 2,000 nautical miles west of Hawaii.)

"When we came over the island the first burst of anti-aircraft fire just beneath us rocked the squadron, this being the nearest shot the Japs got at us. I was over the targets for five minutes. It was beautiful sight, like the Fourth of July on Coney Island, only not so peaceful. They had plenty of fortifications but couldn't see us and missed their mark."

"When we came over the island it was the most beautiful sight I ever saw. There was perfect moonlight and it was clear, after

Showers Expected To Get Here Today

Local thundershowers, scheduled for Wednesday afternoon, will be about 24 hours late in arriving, Glen Jefferson, official weather forecaster, said yesterday.

However, overcast skies kept Atlanta's temperature from going as high as it went Sunday. The high yesterday was 86, against Sunday's 90, while yesterday's low was 70 degrees.

Nation's Traffic Toll Drops 25 Per Cent

CHICAGO, June 29.—(AP)—The nation's traffic death toll dropped 25 per cent in May—the sharpest slump for any month on record. The National Safety Council so reported tonight, and attributed the decrease in large part to the fact that motorists are driving less than they once did and are exercising greater caution in an effort to save cars, tires and gasoline.

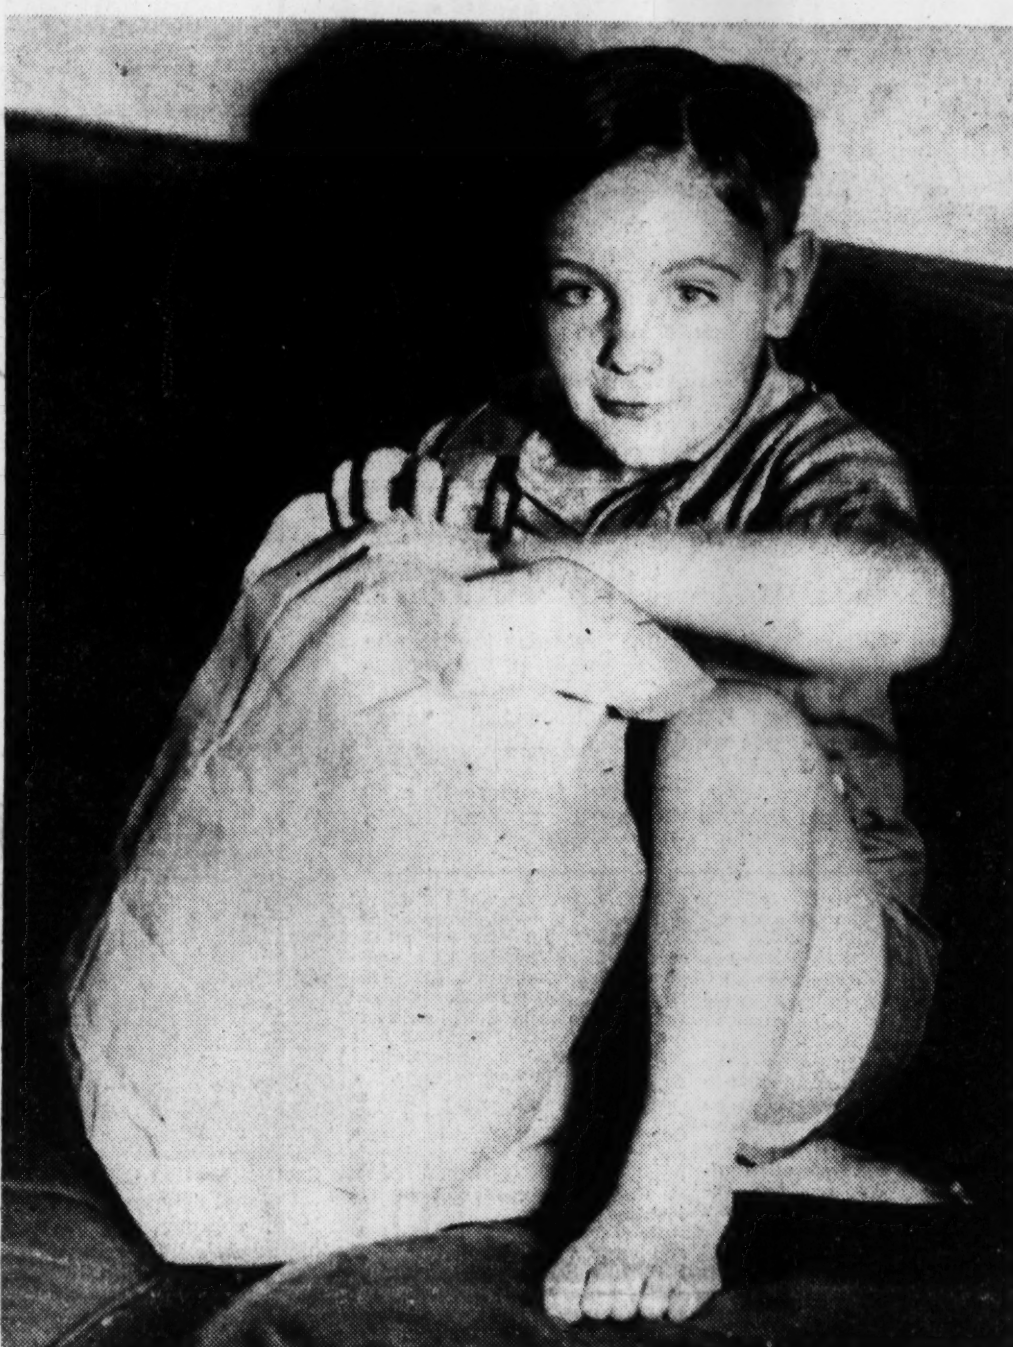

The organization expressed the opinion that gasoline rationing in eastern seaboard states was not an important factor in the national reduction, and cited statistics to show that other regions recorded a similar downward trend in fatalities.

Traffic deaths dropped 26 per cent in May in the North Atlantic district, 31 per cent in the South Atlantic and north central areas, 21 per cent in the south central sector and 27 per cent in the Pacific region. They went up 12 per cent in the mountain states.

The council figured motor vehicle travel dropped 10 per cent in April while early gasoline consumption reports indicated it fell off 20 per cent in May compared with May of the previous year.

Cities of 10,000 or more population cut their fatalities only 3 per cent during the first five months of 1942 while the number of deaths in rural territories fell 15 per cent. Those reckonings led to the conclusion that autoists were taking fewer long trips.

While a record-breaking reduction in fatalities was driving less than they once did and are exercising greater caution in an effort to save cars, tires and gasoline.

GIVE THIS BOY A HOME—The bag which young Gary Ricks, five, who landed in Atlanta yesterday, holds carried a note written in pencil, woman's handwriting, reading: "Please put this baby in a home. I can't take care of him. My husband left."

Mother Abandons Boy, 5, at Terminal

GARY RICKS, brown-haired, bright-eyed five-year-old boy, came to Atlanta yesterday to visit his grandma in Georgia, but late in the afternoon he hadn't seen his grandma, he'd lost his mother, and he'd become Atlanta's youngest red cap.

Gary propped on a post in front of the Terminal Station around 9 o'clock yesterday morning just looking out from under the brim of his little brown felt hat. He had a large paper shopping bag by his side. No one knew him or his name or where he came from. Put one of the Negro red caps saw a woman bring him there, leave him, go back into the railroad station, return and get into a 1935 green sedan automobile and drive off—without Gary.

The little fellow dressed in a grey slacks suit wasn't worried, he didn't cry, didn't ask what'd happened to his mother, didn't have anything to say for a long time. And then a red cap went up to talk to him. He asked his name. No reply. Asked where his mother was. No answer. Asked him if he'd like to have a nice cream cone and the 5-year-old's eyes sparkled, he looked up at the dark man and shook his head. Red cap No. 7, John Heard, invited No. 20, John McFarlin, to help him entertain the youngster, so McFarlin initiated Gary into the ranks of the baggage hustlers.

McFarlin had a train to meet, so he took Gary along. He let Gary put tags on bags, carry the smallest pieces, and even took him for a ride up and down the elevator. Once he drove the lift as No. 20 held him on his shoulders.

In a few short hours Gary became the pet of all the red caps and the waiting taxi drivers. Finally they discovered a note on his paper shopping bag, which

A winding line of humans trailed backward from the window where the drivers' licenses are issued on the basement floor of the State capital.

In a line like that everyone looks over the shoulder of the man ahead and the serpentine trail of craning applicants inches along at a discouraging pace.

Everyone was peering, complaining, wondering, hoping and urging yesterday morning—except the little man at the end of one particular line. He had slipped quietly into position about 9:30 o'clock and had accepted the task ahead of him with a thoroughgoing air of philosophical understanding.

By 10 o'clock, he wasn't at the end of the line. He had moved up and there were 10 or 12 behind him. He was not the type to gloat. He peered around and over his spectacles and comforted himself quietly with the thought that he had made some progress—that he wasn't the last man in the world.

He entertained himself watching people get on and off the elevator.

He read and memorized all the patriotic and directional signs that are in the dark recesses of the capital basement corridors. A janitor mopping a floor occupied his attention and study for 15 minutes.

Meanwhile he inched along with his goal the window where all other humans were headed. The line inched up and he shuffled around a corner, which brought a pleasant prospect of new scenery, new faces to study, new signs to read, other janitors at work. Soon he was inching along past the desks where persons crouched their brows furrowed in concentration, as they filled out blanks.

About 11 o'clock he made it around the last bend, with a clear view of the window ahead—only 20 or 25 persons between him and his goal. He hugged his spot tenaciously. He listened to the idle talk of those about him and at noon—he reached his goal.

Matruh Evacuated By British Forces As Battle Spreads

Driving Axis columns yesterday captured the Egyptian defense bastion of Matruh, as United States air reinforcements were rushed to the assistance of the British Eighth Army in its desperate battle to defend Alexandria, the Suez Canal and even the entire Middle East.

As the British fell back before superior forces in Egypt, only 160 miles from the Alexandria naval base, the Russians threw up a stern and continuing defense against Germans storming Sevastopol in the Crimea, and stubbornly fought a mounting offensive from Kursk, described in London as the Nazis' main summer drive.

Nazis Advance At Sevastopol

MOSCOW, Tuesday, June 30.—(AP)—The Red army smashed wave after wave of German tank attacks in the Kursk sector, north of Kharkov, yesterday but was forced to yield some ground to reinforced German forces in the battle for besieged Sevastopol, the Russian midnight communique said today.

The high command indicated the German offensive in both these sectors was increasing in violence, especially around the Crimean naval stronghold, where the communique disclosed new German reserves were being used.

"On the Sevastopol sector," the communique said, "our troops repulsed frequent attacks of superior forces of the enemy. The enemy put new reserves into the battle. With heavy losses, the enemy succeeded in advancing somewhat. The battles are extremely fierce."

Serious Advance Indicated.

There was no indication how extensive the German advance was or whether the penetration was on the northern or southern side of Sevastopol, but the word "somewhat" in the communique might mean the advance was serious.

The high command said: "The German command, trying to break down Sevastopol's resistance, is throwing in more and more tanks and aircraft."

In the Kursk sector, 280 miles south of Moscow, where the Germans started a big offensive Sunday, "a large number of enemy tank attacks" were repulsed with heavy losses, the communique said.

The Soviet information bureau issued a special communique today denying the claim made by the German yesterday that they had captured 30,000 Russian troops on the Volkhov front, south of Leningrad.

Heavy Fighting Reported.

The communique said there had been heavy fighting in this sector earlier this month and that both sides had suffered heavy losses, but the Germans were said to have lost "no less than 30,000 killed alone" while the Red army lost only about 10,000 killed and 10,000 missing.

(A military commentator in London said "the main German offensive" opened with the Kursk attack. He added that the full weight of German attacks was being felt in the Kharkov and Kursk areas and that the Nazis were driving for the Don river and Stalingrad.

(The German high command said 15 tanks were destroyed around Kharkov in attacks east of the Donets river. The Nazis claimed to have crossed the Tchernaja valley

CAIRO, June 29.—(AP)—Great Britain's desert army, reinforced by United States planes and fliers and by fresh New Zealand troops, fought stubbornly tonight in a funnel-shaped area east of Matruh after that stronghold was evacuated for terrain which the British command considered more advantageous.

As the details of the battle began to reach here, it became known that there was no fighting in Matruh itself and that all supplies were removed before the Axis forces entered the town, which is 175 miles west of Alexandria. It was understood that the British never had any intention of making a stand at Matruh.

They withdrew quickly to the east and were followed by advance units of Marshal Erwin Rommel's mechanized army, creating a funnel-shaped spearhead near the Mediterranean coast which tonight was being jabbed along the sides by British columns.

A dispatch filed by Harry Crockett Associated Press correspondent with the British army in the western desert, at 3 a. m. today (Monday) said the British were planning all-out defense about 45 to 50 miles east of Matruh, in the region between the coast and the great Qattara depression.

"The Battle of Egypt is on in full force," Crockett messaged.

Later the correspondent filed a second brief dispatch: "We expect big developments in the next few days," he said.

The British are confident they can hold the line toward which the German 21st and 15th Panzer divisions are driving.

The announcement tonight that new American air reinforcements had arrived and that more were being rushed to the desert battle scene indicated every effort was

Treason Suspect Is Placed on Trial

DETROIT, June 29.—(AP)—Charged with treason, Max Stephan, 49-year-old German-born Detroit restaurateur, went on trial today in federal court. Selection of a jury was expected to be completed late this afternoon.

Stephan, a naturalized citizen, is accused of aiding Lieutenant Peter Krug, German air force flyer, who escaped last April 18 from a Canadian concentration camp at Bowmanville, Ontario.

One of a score of witnesses against Stephan will be Krug, who the government charges was wine and dined by the restaurateur when he came to Detroit.

5 Colonels Retire; All Are Ordered Back to Duty

By AL SHARP.

Five colonels stationed in Atlanta will be retired today, but not to golf courses, trout streams and tree-shaded hammocks.

No, sir, they'll just be retired under the new Army law, and it won't interfere with work at all, because all have been reordered to duty because of the war.

Britain, Soviet In Lease-Lend Supply Accord

Agreement Provides for Financing War Supplies to Reds.

MOSCOW, Tuesday, June 30.—(AP)—Great Britain and the Soviet Union have signed an agreement providing for financing of British military supplies sent to Russia, the Moscow radio announced today.

The agreement was signed June 27 in Moscow by the British ambassador, Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, and A. I. Mikoyan, Soviet foreign trade commissar.

Under the agreement British military supplies will be delivered to the Soviet Union on a lease-lend basis.

The pact was made retroactive to June 22, 1941, the day the Germans invaded Russia.

The agreement does not concern the financing of British deliveries of raw materials and equipment of a general character which was covered in a previous understanding signed August 16, 1941.

1,000,000 Jews Killed

By Nazi Regime.

LONDON, June 29.—(AP)—The British section of the World Jewish Congress estimated today that more than 1,000,000 Jews have been killed or died as the result of ill treatment in countries dominated by Germany.

Officials said that 700,000 Jews had lost their lives in Poland and Lithuania and 125,000 in Rumania, while additional deaths had been reported in other Nazi-controlled areas.

OFFICERS RETIRE TO MORE WORK—Many officers officially will be retired today, but that doesn't mean they'll quit working, because war makes retirement a formality. These four colonels may take a few minutes' time to think about retirement, but work will go on. They are, left to right: standing, Colonel P. S. Holmes, Colonel George H. Rarey, Colonel J. A. Nelson, and seated, Colonel William F. Riter. All are stationed at the Fourth Corps Area Quartermaster offices here.

Colonel Confesses 'Borrowing' Onion, Salmon--After 40 Years

Colonel William F. Riter recalled yesterday the time he got so hungry that he "borrowed" an onion and a can of salmon from a supply tent.

The colonel—he was Willie Riter then—had a tough time getting the can open with a rock, "but that onion and salmon surely tasted good."

Colonel Riter kept the story secret for more than 40 years before he told it. "All the time I was afraid they'd catch me just any day," he smiled yesterday.

Colonel Riter, who was in four, including the Spanish-American War, Philippine campaign, World War I and the present one, remembers when the Quartermaster Corps left the following items out of a soldier's diet: Jam, milk, butter, fruits, lard, spices and flavor extract.

"There were only two meats, too," he recalled yesterday. "Since those days of beef and bacon, we have got around to serving all kinds of meats. Then, during my first days with the Quartermaster Corps in 1898, the ration for a day cost 15 cents. Today it costs 55 cents."

"That gives you a good idea of how much better our fighting men are fed nowadays,"

Colonel Nelson, automotive officer of the Fourth Corps Area, started his military career in 1905, he has served in the cavalry, infantry, and Quartermaster Corps, including two tours of duty in the Philippines. In the cavalry, he was in the campaign against the Moros. During World War I he served at the port of embarkation as officer in charge of the supply division, the Army Transport Service and chief of the Effects Bureau. Later he served as officer in charge of procurement planning of motor vehicles, in Detroit, and with the Fourth Corps Area quartermaster as transportation officer, officer in charge of plans and training and as executive officer.

Colonel Riter, who is supply officer and senior member on the staff of Colonel Roland Walsh, Fourth Corps Area quartermaster, is now seeing active service in his fourth war. Joining the Army as a private in the Spanish-American War, Colonel Riter rose from the ranks to a captain's commission in World War I. He has been on duty in Atlanta in his present position since June, 1938.

Colonel Holmes, executive officer to the corps area quartermaster, entered the service as a captain in 1917. He served overseas with the chief quartermaster and with the Fourth Section, General Staff, General Headquarters, A. E. F., France. He has been on duty in the quartermaster's office here since December, 1940.

Entrusted with keeping the motor vehicles in the seven southeastern states rolling, is Colonel Rarey, another old-timer when it comes to service. Colonel Rarey enlisted in 1899, but was out of the service from 1902 to 1917 when he was commissioned a first lieutenant in the infantry. Colonel Rarey was one of the pioneers in the development of the tank as a modern instrument of warfare.

Colonel Holland Services.

Colonel Holland came here as commanding officer of the Fourth Corps Area Quartermaster Depot and has watched it grow into the huge Atlanta General Depot at Conley—"Breadbasket of the Fighting Men."

He started as a civilian in 1899 and was commissioned a captain in 1917. He has served at many posts, including Philadelphia and Hawaii.

Incidentally, Colonel Holland recently became a grandfather, his son, Lieutenant Josh Holland, of the Quartermaster General's office, being the proud papa of a girl.

Libya, and strike back at the Italian battle fleet attacking convoys. At least 35 bomb hits were scored by the U. S. fliers on two Italian battleships.

U. S. Army bombers and the RAF attacked enemy tanks and supply columns throughout the day and night, while on land mobile British artillery pounded vigorously at the advancing Axis Africa Corps in a desperate attempt to stem the tide.

Great fires of gasoline dumps were set aflame between Matruh and Salum as the Allied fliers strived mightily to cripple Marshal Erwin Rommel's tenuous supply lines.

The British announcement that Matruh was "evacuated" was taken to mean that the Eighth Army had retired in good order.

135-Degree Heat Abates.

The normal 135-degree desert heat by day had abated somewhat and the refreshing coolness of nights gave the battle-grimed combatants greater energy to carry on.

The decisive battle ranged over a vast brown wasteland and it was apparent that both the Germans and British were more intent upon destroying each other than upon holding any particular point.

The bottleneck of hard desert floor between the Mediterranean and the Qattara depression narrowed to about 45 miles at a point some 50 miles east of Matruh and it appeared possible that the Eighth Army might attempt a stand there. Strong defense positions, too, were prepared at Daba, 75 miles east of Matruh.

The battle was joined Saturday afternoon and has been going on without quarter ever since. It is a hot battle of movement and early developed into scattered contests between mobile artillery and opposing tanks. The infantry merely occupied, overran, points and rounded up prisoners.

Battling at Night.

A bright desert moon allowed the fighting to continue during the nights.

It appeared to informed observers that General Sir Claude Auchinleck was playing for all it was worth his best chance of saving Alexandria and the Nile—a gradual retirement of his main forces, using limited mobile groups to spar furiously with Rommel's advance columns until reinforcements can arrive.

DOUBLE CELEBRATION—Colonel Thomas L. Holland, commanding officer of the Atlanta General Depot at Conley, plans to take a day off today to celebrate his thirty-third wedding anniversary, as well as his retirement. The retirement doesn't mean anything, really, because he'll be back at work tomorrow, but anyhow Colonel Holland has plenty to celebrate.

Russians Slow German Drive Against Kursk

and infiltrated to Sapun hill—a natural defense promontory in the southeast of Sevastopol. The Germans said that 15,667 prisoners had been taken in the Sevastopol battle between June 7 and 28 and that 900 Russians were killed and 332 captured on the central front. Big German guns were said to be shelling factories in Leningrad. The Nazis said nothing of the Kursk fighting.)

The new German drive at Kursk was spearheaded by scores of tanks and dive bombers and pointed like a dagger at Voronezh on the west bank of the Don and about midway on the vital Moscow-to-Rostov railway line. Voronezh was 120 miles from the front and if Marshal Fedor von Bock could reach it, he would be in a position to drive either south toward the Caucasus or north toward the capital. A major advance would certainly outflank the Russian armies of Marshal Semenov and Timoshenko deployed between Rostov and Kharkov.

But there was no evidence that the Germans were meeting with even initial success.

Rebuff at Sevastopol.

Sevastopol dispatches said violent fighting continued northeast of the beleaguered Crimean base with "tens of attacks" of several German infantry divisions trying to break the stalwart Soviet defense line. In one weekend battle which lasted a day, the Russians said they killed 1,500 Germans.

Axis troops attacking the southern sector of Sevastopol's fortifications were said to have been given a "strong rebuff."

The latest word from the Kupiansk front south of Kharkov was that the Russians still were counterattacking with some success. The German drive there was reported definitely blunted.

The central front is still largely mud-bound, but the Russian command said several Nazi attempts to capture Red positions were repulsed.

RENT DIRECTORS FOR SAVANNAH, MACON NAMED

Henderson Issues Rules Requiring Reductions in Many Areas.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—(AP) Price Administrator Leon Henderson issued maximum rent regulations today requiring reduction of rents in 54 defense-rental areas containing about one-fifth of the nation's population.

The regulations, effective Wednesday, will cut rents back to levels prevailing on January 1, 1941, in seven areas; April 1, 1941, in 27 areas; July 1, 1941, in six areas, and March 1, 1942, in 14 areas.

At the same time, Henderson announced appointment of 48 area rent directors who will administer the regulations and disclosed that OPA had decided to exclude five areas into which it had planned to extend rent control on Wednesday.

Henderson said that action still was pending in 248 other defense-rental areas, and that "we will make rent control effective in any one of those areas as soon as conditions warrant, and as soon as we can recruit sufficient personnel and open offices to administer federal rent regulation."

Excluded Areas.

The five areas excluded from July 1 regulation were Mineral Wells, Texas; Flint, Mich.; Charleston, S. C.; Gainesville, Fla., and Louisville, Ky.

Henderson said preliminary investigations in these areas "indicated in general that substantial compliance to the price administration's recommendations had been made," but that further inquiry would be taken to determine whether federal rent control should be established.

Meanwhile, the area rent directors for these five would maintain small offices and keep close watch on the local rent situation, Henderson said.

Paul A. Porter, deputy OPA administrator in charge of rents, said that the rent offices would function in these areas, however, with some member of the staff acting as director until a permanent appointment was made.

Directors Named.

Among the defense-rental areas and directors, in the order of maximum rent dates applicable:

January 1, 1941—Alexandria, La.; Robert N. Jamieson; Montgomery-Prince Georges, Md.; James W. Woodard; Jackson, Miss.; Raymond Gattis Butler; Hattiesburg, Miss.; Sidney B. Berry; Eugene E. Northern; Massena, N. Y.; Edward L. Storey; Watertown, N. Y.; Harry Kinney; Fayetteville, N. C.; Franklin St. Clair Clark; Radford-Pulaski, Va.; to be announced; Morgantown, W. Va.; Walter W. Armentrout.

July 1, 1941—Minden, La.; Edwin S. Richardson; Texarkana, Texas; Arch L. Propps.

March 1, 1942—Savannah, Ga.; Francis McDonald Oliver; Buffalo, N. Y.; Weston M. Carroll.

THE HOUSE THAT GEORGE BUILT!—Building a nine-room, two-story house alone is quite a feat for anyone, but when the builder is one-legged George W. Adolphus, pictured above cheerily waving his trusty hammer, mister—that's something!

MR. AND MRS. AMERICA—George and Kate Adolphus have been married 25 years. He is postmaster at the tiny Sandy Springs post office.

One-Legged Man Builds Home; Wake 'Leveled' By U. S. Army Bomber Force

By PATRICIA BRONTE.

Next time you're feeling low and the notion it's a sorry old world moves in like an unwelcome relative—drive out to Sandy Springs and have a chat with George W. Adolphus.

He'll be easy to find. Sandy Springs is just a tiny village and all you have to look for is the post office. Inside you'll meet Postmaster Adolphus, whom you will instantly recognize by a friendly grin framed in a rugged brown face, by his tall, sparse build—and by the fact he only has one leg.

Adolphus lost his left leg just below the hip in a train wreck 35 years ago. He confesses today it was tough going for a long time. It isn't easy to adjust yourself to any kind of crippling condition—he says it tends to cripple your heart and mind, too.

Change for Better.

The change for the better came when he married sweet-faced Kate Adolphus 25 years ago. She, and their two fine boys—George Jr. is in the Navy now, and has been torpedoed three times, while James is an instructor in anti-aircraft technique at Camp Stewart, Ga.—helped carve the rich and normal life that is his today.

Adolphus' unabashed common sense about his loss of a leg cropped up recently when a letter from the one-legged postmaster arrived two weeks ago asking this newspaper's help in locating three right shoes, size 10½ E. A front-page request was printed to aid his search.

Adolphus said he, in turn, would trade his extra left shoe for the right ones. He explained he had been buying shoes with another fellow for the past 12 years, but when the latter had recently moved away Adolphus was left without a shoe-swapping chum.

Story Brings Response.

They used to take turns picking out shoes—then the other would go to the shop and pay for the shoe that was left. Even when Adolphus lived in California they exchanged shoes by mail. Now, he wanted another one-legged man to share shoes with him.

The Constitution story brought a response, Adolphus said yesterday, of more than a dozen letters and many shoes. The answers came from Georgia, Florida, Louisiana and Mississippi. He'd even picked up a correspondence with some of his one-legged friends.

Although he's driven a car from here to California and back six times, his present job requires a lot of walking. He delivers all the special delivery letters that come to Sandy Springs, and before cars became popular he used to walk 10 miles a day for enjoyment. He's never had an accident, and explained when he gets into traffic he throws the car out of gear or runs in second.

The almost fabulous monument to George W. Adolphus stands on his five-acre farm at Sandy Springs. He and Mrs. Kate don't think of it as a monument, of course—not the house where they live. But an outsider sees something else in the comfortable nine-room, two-story house that George Adolphus built alone, with his own two hands.

The 37-year-old, one-legged postmaster started building it six years ago. Except for one inside staircase it's almost finished. The gabled pine structure stands high atop a shady hill overlooking his field of corn and beans and yams and potatoes, his scores of chickens and the big play-house he made for the neighborhood children who come to spend weekends with Adolphus and his wife.

Adolphus mentions very casually his third-cousin relationship to Crown Prince Gustavus Adolphus, of Sweden. Its appearance here is just as casual, for if the one-legged postmaster were the crown prince himself that royal accident of fate would be less impressive than the courage and the good-natured determination with which this man has looked tragedy in the eye and laughed and gone on living.

Allied Teamwork Blanks Out Zeros

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA.

June 29.—(AP)—Destruction of two Japanese Zero (naval) planes in an anti-aircraft barrage after an Allied pilot had lured them into point-blank range was described today by a member of the gun battery.

The pilot was on patrol when the Zeros swooped down on him from a cloudbank. Unable to shake them off, he started for home.

With the Zeros repeatedly firing at him, the pilot went into a power dive toward a clump of trees he knew concealed the battery.

The Zeros zoomed down for the kill and the anti-aircraft gunners held their fire until the last moment.

"We ripped them open at 500 yards," a gunner said.

being overcast all the way over. We hit all our targets, set the main building afire, leveled everything on the surface. One plane started to take off from Wake, but didn't get far. Two others got into the air and one tailed us but didn't attempt to attack.

"I don't think they'll get any more planes off from there for some time, and I don't think we left any for them to take off with. I never saw such enthusiastic crews, all rearing to go and ready to carry this offensive to all the Jap islands. We dropped our bombs from a medium level. There were no lights showing and the Japs seemed slow to go into anti-aircraft action after the first burst, but when they did, everything lit up."

Meehan lives in Indianapolis. His wife is at Newburgh, N. Y. Authorities said that the American high command apparently was following a strategy of attrition with regard to Wake, permitting the enemy to build it up as a base for airplanes and possibly submarines and then destroying the installations when they are about ready for use.

Thus, the Japs are having to pay a high price for their possession of the island which they originally occupied at a cost of seven warships, scores of not hundreds of men killed and several planes destroyed.

'Too Busy To Write,' Meehan Phones Wife

NEWBURGH, N. Y., June 29.—(AP)—"I don't know what he did, but if he did it to the Japs it's o. k. by me."

That was the comment tonight of the wife of Colonel Art W. Meehan, former West Point quartermaster who piloted one of the bombers over Japanese-held Wake Island in a moonlight raid last Saturday.

Mrs. Meehan was excited. She was happy and proud. " . . . He's swell, pretty swell . . . gosh, wait! I put the phone the other hand . . . what's the whole story? . . . never mind, don't tell me, I'll hear it on the radio . . . I can't wait . . . he's wonderful . . ."

Mrs. Meehan, 32, said she hadn't seen her 37-year-old husband since she and her daughters—Susan, 11, and Judith, 5—left Hickam Field, Honolulu, December 29 to come and live here with her mother. She went on:

" . . . I talked to him by phone today, yes today, at 1 p. m. (E. W. T.), and he said he was fine but had been too busy to write lately . . . he couldn't say where he was calling from, but I think I know . . . the operator dropped a hint but I'd better not say where . . ."

"The last time I had a letter from him was June 18, after the battle of Midway. He didn't say much about the battle, but he did say he was elated. He's certainly swell."

FARLEY URGED TO RUN.

NEW YORK, June 29.—(AP)—The board of directors of the New York Young Democratic Club has adopted a resolution urging former Postmaster General James A. Farley to run for governor of New York state on the Democratic ticket, it was disclosed today.

MEET THE POSTMASTER—He's George W. Adolphus, who runs the post office, delivers special delivery letters himself, and tends his two-acre crop at home when he isn't working on the nine-room house he built by himself. He says he can climb a ladder almost as fast as any two-legged man.

contained all his clothes—mostly dirty. It read:

"Please put this baby in a home. I can't take care of him. My husband left."

On the bag also was written—Gary Ricks, 5 years old, Goodes, Virginia.

As No. 20 and No. 7 let young Ricks help them assist the growing number of train passengers, they shared tips with him. One load Gary made eight cents, another 22 and all in all before he left the clan he'd amassed 40-cent pennies. His pockets fairly bulged with coppers and he finally took a paper candy sack to carry them around.

Around noon time Station Officer A. R. Hambrick became anxious about Gary. That's when they examined the bag to try to find some clue and found the pencil scribbled note.

One More Trip.

The red caps wanted to take Gary on one more trip before Hambrick called police, so he went down to see No. 32 leave at 2:40. This trip gave Gary a chance to run the elevator from atop McFarlin's shoulders.

When they returned Officers W. G. Baldwin and M. T. Maddox, of Car 21, waited for Gary at the front of the station. McFarlin explained to the boy that the men just wanted to give him a ride. Then before Gary reached the juvenile detention home, he'd captured the officers' fancy and they impressed him so that he was still admiring their gold buttons when Judge Garland Watkins went in to see him.

Gary didn't have much to say. He laughed, ate ice cream, pranced around with more pep than is normally allotted three children of his age. He spoke of a brother he called "Rodney," said he was about 9 years old, but said he saw his mother this morning, saw his father a few days ago, and wouldn't describe his mother, his home, or anyone but the policeman.

Gary is being held at the juvenile home until information can be obtained from the Bedford (Va.) juvenile court, the nearest to his home town, Goodes, population 150.

Halifax To Visit London For August Vacation

LONDON, June 29.—(AP)—Lord Halifax is expected here in August for a short vacation and competent sources said the ambassador would return to his post at Washington early in September. His visit will enable him to renew contacts with his colleagues in the cabinet.

There is absolutely no suggestion that Lord Halifax will not return to Washington as ambassador," the source said tonight. "His trip will be routine and was planned months ago."

House Hurries To Beat Fiscal Year Deadline

Night Session Held in Effort To Clear Money Bills.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—(AP)—Hurrying to beat a Tuesday midnight deadline, the house approved compromise versions of four departmental appropriation bills today and held a night session to debate a $2,000,000,000 bill carrying funds for the Office of Price Administration and a group of other new agencies. It was agreed a vote on the latter bill would be deferred until tomorrow.

Leaders, hoping to dispose of all regular appropriation bills before the new fiscal year starts Wednesday, also called for votes tomorrow on compromise measures carrying funds for the Department of Agriculture, the Federal Security Agency and the Department of Labor. They said the house would remain in session tomorrow night if necessary to get the bills passed.

Action Deferred.

House action on the compromise Interior, State-Commerce-Justice, and Works Project Administration appropriation bills must be ratified by the senate before the measures go to the White House.

The senate deferred action on them until tomorrow and also postponed until then consideration of a "house-approved" $42,800,000,000 war supply bill.

The latter measure was reported to the senate today and immediate action asked, but Senator McNary, of Oregon, the Republican leader, objected.

"In the name of decency and out of respect to orderly procedure," he told his colleagues, "we should have at least one day to consider a bill proposing to appropriate $42,800,000,000, a sum quite a bit larger than all the expenses of the war 25 years ago."

Accepts Delay.

Senator Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, in charge of the bill, agreed to one day's delay.

There was virtually no debate on three of the supply bills passed by the house. In rapid order the members sent to the senate measures supplying $425,000,000 for the State, Commerce and Justice departments; $280,000,000 for the WPA, and $32,000,000 for defense housing in the District of Columbia.

All had been passed previously by both branches, but disagreements on amendments had tied them up in conference.

On the fourth bill, however, the house debated for almost four hours. It carried approximately $178,099,000 for the Interior Department.

Finally Approved.

The controversy centered around a senate amendment, which the house finally approved, making $3,923,000 available for the Central Valley irrigation and power project in California.

In controversy in the agriculture appropriation bill is a senate amendment to permit sales of government-controlled surplus wheat for livestock feeding at about 83 cents a bushel. The house voted to prohibit such sales below the current parity price of $1.34 a bushel.

Holding up the labor-security appropriation is refusal of the senate to accept a house amendment eliminating funds for the Civilian Conservation Corps.

Roy Norton, 72, Author, Succumbs

MINEOLA, N. Y., June 29.—(AP) Roy Norton, 72, author and adventurer, who won fame in many fields, but was proudest of building the first golf course in the Sahara desert, died last night at the Medowbrook hospital here after a lingering illness.

As a friend of Rex Beach, Norton had followed the gold rush to Alaska, and penned "The Plunderers" in 1911 to tell of his experiences in the far north. He enjoyed telling friends how he built the first golf course to decorate the dry Sahara after spending six years in northern Africa as an engineer, between 1920 and 1926.

"Drang Nach Osten"

Germany is moving closer to her objectives in Egypt. General Rommel's army yesterday gained another victory with unexpected ease. Egypt still can be held, but the outlook is dark as the British leadership, supplied with men and material, fails to find any effective use for them.

The German objectives are, of course, both economic and political.

The physical objectives are Alexandria, principal base of the British navy in the eastern Mediterranean. Cairo, in the heart of the rich Nile valley, is another objective. It happens to be the city most revered by the Moslems.

Capture of these two cities would mean that British sea power would be wiped out in the Mediterranean and that the Moslems would revolt. The whole of Asia Minor might break into flames with the capture of Cairo and the German assistance of the anti-British peoples in that part of the world.

The Suez canal is a minor objective. The canal itself would be controlled by the capture of Alexandria and Cairo.

They are the immediate objectives.

The others are concerned with the famed German plan of a "Drang nach Osten." Tripoli and Haifa are the terminal cities of the pipe lines from Iraq. There are other rich oil fields on the Persian gulf. Germany probably could not solve the transportation difficulties, but capture would deprive England of the oil and force upon this country the tremendous and almost impossible task of sending enough oil to England to keep that country in the war. Loss of the oil also would mean India would not be defended.

If Syria and Iraq are occupied Turkey would be enveloped and Germany would take over that country, thus completing the dream of the "Drang nach Osten" (drive to the east).

It is most important that Egypt be held.

These are black days and they will continue to be black until the English have shown they can stop Rommel and his iron legions.

Hollywood at War

The nation's film capital usually is thought of as a rendezvous of fast living, lavish spending, snap marriages and snapper divorces, enormous salaries and dream-world for fame and success. But Hollywood at war is showing that some of the stars are as good salesmen as they are entertainers, that movies can be inspiration to patriotism as well as humbug pastimes.

Hundreds of stars are giving their time and talents in selling war bonds, entertaining in service camps, making programs for the Treasury programs, making speeches on the Minute Men series. Movies are exerting a tremendous influence in showing our part in the war effort, in encouraging enlistment, in helping popularize salvage drives.

Movie themes, too, have shown a high degree of proportion and good taste. We have had no films like "The Geezer of Berlin" of World War I, whose only purpose was to generate hate. Propaganda in the films of today is more cleverly concealed, leaves no doubt as to the cruelty and brutality of the enemy, but usually containing a note showing how a nation is victimized by tyrannical Nazi leaders.

Hollywood is doing a good job in helping keep up morale at home, in aiding the government's various campaigns, in giving pictures of at-the-front scenes. Stars such as Dorothy Lamour, Fredric March, Bob Hope and numerous others are doing yeoman service as bond salesmen. In the war effort, the movie industry is showing great justification for the support it has received from the public.

26-42-32

We rather like what the government has done about cables. It has arranged a set of 100 numbers for inexpensive sending of cables to and by men in the armed forces who are abroad.

A vocabulary of about 800 words is included in those 100 numbers and a man may say almost anything in that many words. Indeed, as any city editor never fails to inform the newest reporter, the story of the creation of the world was told in even fewer words than that.

Any three figures may be cabled for 60 cents plus the federal tax.

The numbers 26-42-32, for instance, would say, "Greetings. Kisses. All my love, darling." A fellow wouldn't want to say much more than that. Even the ladies, who popularly are regarded as being more loquacious, would think that enough. 85-86-38 would say, "Son born. Daughter born. All of us send love." A man might hesitate to write out a mushy cable and hand it to the clerk, but these figures offer no embarrassing features. The figure 34, for instance, looks very unromantic. Actually they mean "Dearest love, darling." You can ask for money, too, by sending 103.

When they are received, of course, the operator translates them into words. The recipient doesn't just get a set of figures. That's for the sending.

It's all very nice and we think it very sweet of the War Department, with all the trouble it has, to find the time to work out a code which will serve sweethearts as well as fond and worried parents.

Gas, Melons, Peaches

Senator Walter George did an excellent job getting extra gasoline for the farmers of the melon-raising counties of Colquitt, Thomas, Brooks, Cook and Lowndes. That section of the state is now selling its melons and peaches and beans are coming in. The extra amount of gasoline will allow them to market their melons.

The farmer is up against a difficult problem. The railroads are doing the best they can, but admittedly transportation of men and materials has the right of way. The peach farmer is unhappy over his outlook.

Senator Richard B. Russell is making a great fight to have Georgia get a proper share of any lend-lease purchase of peaches. He has been informed, however, that the shipping shortage probably will reduce the amount of peaches to be shipped to England this year. If there is no lend-lease purchasing the Georgia peach grower will indeed have a bad year.

The government might properly realize the fact and urge upon its quartermasters that they buy peaches often during the season for use at the large camps.

A "Home Away From Home"

On several occasions we have observed the popularity of our new recreation building for men of the armed forces. Since the opening of this attractive center beside the Atlanta city auditorium, soldiers, sailors and marines have really made this their "home away from home."

The achievement of the Atlanta War Recreation Committee in getting this building and its facilities speaks eloquently for this organization. And now Atlanta has the opportunity of praising this work by its support—in dollars. The United War Work Fund campaign—July 7-17, will turn over a sizeable portion of its contributions to the local War Recreation Committee for the continuance of its work. Since the United War Work Fund combines 10 service fund appeals, it certainly deserves strong support. It will continue to do for others, what we should like to have done for us if an emergency arose.

Georgia Editors Say:

DUTY TO FORESTS

(From The Blue Ridge Summit-Post)
This summer brings a gigantic responsibility to those who live in the great forested areas of the United States—and to those who visit those areas. That responsibility is to give more thought, more effort, to the prevention of forest fires than ever before. The danger season is rapidly approaching.

The worth of our timber resources cannot be described solely in terms of money. If a woodland is razed by fire, a great many years must pass before new trees can grow to usable size. One great forest fire, starting from a single spark, can utterly destroy millions of board feet of timber which the nation needs now.

What the individual must keep in mind is his own duty. The saboteur, planning for destruction, may do more damage than an ignorant and careless camper or motorist. No one knows how much forest waste has resulted from improper disposal of smoking materials, and carelessness with camp fires. The total reaches staggering proportions. Only those who go into the forest can prevent such needless destruction.

The rules are simple. Never leave a fire until it is completely out—and that means when it is soaked with water or buried deep in earth. Never drop a match or a cigarette butt until it is cold. Obey, to the letter, every one of the regulations laid down for forest protection by the authorities. Remember that the very existence of the forests is in your hands.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

WHITE PAPER WASHINGTON, June 29.—After reading the "anti-white paper" published in The Ladies Home Journal by Ernest K. Lindley and Forrest Davis, some commentators are taking the view that the Japanese committed an act of the utmost stupidity in failing to see where it might have been possible for them to have made most of their gains in the Pacific without involving us in war.

Such an interpretation of events is based on the "white paper" disclosure, admittedly taken from White House and State Department files that the British, Australians and the Dutch tried to get President Roosevelt to join in an ultimatum to Japan to stop her encroachments in Indo-China, but that Mr. Roosevelt, uncertain of whether congress would follow him in a request for war declaration, preferred instead to "baby" the Japs along for a while.

It is, of course, obvious that congress would not have honored a presidential recommendation for a declaration of war without some overt act against us in the Pacific. We did not like any of the things the Japanese were doing. Our declared policy was to aid the Chinese against the aggressions committed against her by the Tokyo government. We did not like the Japanese alignment with the Axis powers, her surreptitious occupation of Indo-China, or her blustering military tactics and threats.

But none of these acts was regarded as a sufficient provocation for war. Our main concern, our chief preoccupation, was with events in Europe. We had no fear of the Japs; we only distrusted them. We did have a fear of Hitler overrunning Europe, subduing the British, and then ultimately moving against us in a war that was inevitable between the two remaining great powers of the world.

Our better thinking statesmen realized that an armed clash between two nations conflicting over moral and economic concepts was absolutely unavoidable. The $13,000,000,000 applied for lend-lease aid to Britain and Russia was to stay the evil day until we could become prepared. Nearly all of our concern was with Hitler; little of it with Japan, except as a collateral issue.

WAR PROVOCATION

Hence, some of the commentators are greatest stupidity in not realizing she could have committed the sphere of activities in the Pacific almost indefinitely, without becoming involved in a war with us, had she only refrained from making the attack on Pearl Harbor.

All of that is probably true, so far as it goes. It is difficult to see how we might have become involved if Japan had taken everything in the Pacific except the Philippines and our own outposts. We would have heaped the same censure on them for their acts as we did on Hitler for his various aggressions in Europe. But it is difficult to see where these developments could have been considered any more of a provocation for war than we had against the Germans, with whom we were still technically at peace.

What the commentators overlook is that the act of stupidity was committed not in Tokyo, but in Berlin. We will not get the full story until some future historian, after the war, pieces together in new white papers the details of the preliminary developments in Germany and Japan. There is enough evidence at hand already, however, to lead to the unescapable conclusion that the extension of the war to the Pacific was hatched in Berlin rather than Tokyo.

Left to their own resources, the Nipponese warlords, with all of their illusions and bravado, could hardly have been ambitious enough to think they could strike us down without some positive commitment from Hitler as to his ability, first, to defend the Russians, and then come to their aid against us and the British.

The fact that Germany declared war on us within 48 hours after Pearl Harbor is proof enough of the prior commitments. Although we strongly suspected Berlin's part in the December 7 treachery, we carefully omitted the other two Axis partners in the war declaration which followed that fateful Sunday.

RUSSIA WARNED

Based upon information supplied by diplomatic and intelligence officers, our officials believe that the attack on Pearl Harbor was cooked up by two Tokyo and Berlin a year in advance. Some of the pocket-size submarines used in the attack were especially built for operations at Hawaii.

At the time the attack was agreed upon, Hitler had made his plans for the invasion of Russia. Prime Minister Churchill and now it develops, President Roosevelt knew of these plans regarding Russia six months in advance. Through their accredited officials, both warned the Soviet government.

From these known facts we may only surmise that Hitler persuaded the Japs to move when they did on the conviction that by December 7 his forces would be in the mission they were about to begin. Certainly there was no basis for his statements, as subsequent events proved.

But the final evidence of the blunder having been concocted at Berlin, instead of Tokyo, is found in the chain of events at Vichy, France. Before the Japs could carry out the scheme of conquest it was necessary to gain quiet consent of the Vichy government for occupying Indo-China with the troops which were to be used in the siege of the Malay Peninsula and Singapore. The latter, one of the strongest fortified outposts in the world, could not have been taken by assault from the sea.

It was Hitler who arranged for the Vichy government to give the Japs consent for the occupation of Indo-China. The French, beaten down with half of their country occupied by the Nazis, could not have been persuaded to grant the concession for any whole Pacific war. It was delivered to the Japs by Hitler.

Except for the failure of Hitler's timetable in the Jap move in the Pacific might have been a success rather than a blunder. The Russians messed up all of the pretty plans by refusing to fall. And to make the act even more stupid, the Japs failed to knock our fleet out at Pearl Harbor as they had planned. We survived the treachery with enough ships to stand them off until we could regroup and blow them away when they were well at arm's length and are only waiting the day when our vastly superior production will be able to deliver the final blow.

What happened at Pearl Harbor was Hitler's blunder. The Japs, with their ambitious aims for setting up an empire in the Pacific, were merely sucked in on it.

FINLAND BLUNDERED

AT CONFERENCE

Editor, Constitution:

"The saddest are these

It might have been."

On June 15, 1941 the writer directed a letter to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt to circumvent Steve Early at the door and to insure prompt and safe delivery. Mrs. Roosevelt at that time breakfasted regularly with the President.

The letter suggested that Mr. Roosevelt make tripartite treaty with Finland and Russia for the duration. That he had just been voted unlimited emergency powers which he could make supercede the Monroe Doctrine, which forbade all foreign alliances.

Three days later, June 18, 1941, lease-lend negotiator, Harry Hopkins, who was then in London, and Ambassador Biddle, I think it was, planned across to Leningrad. My hopes soared skyward then that the treaty would be made. Never had asked nor expected a reply from the government for the obvious imperative need for the very strictest secrecy, and to this day I am utterly ignorant as to whether or not the rapprochement was ever made with the two powers, and was rejected by Finland. Only know it was diplomatically feasible and valid then as we have made a far more comprehensive one since with Britain for second, and even third, fronts.

Since that portentous effort was made 20,000,000 soldiers have been slaughtered or interned and the U. S. alone has spent or pledged over 150,000,000,000 of money, and we are told the war hasn't fully started.

The writer thinks he's entitled to know the journey traveled by his first diplomatic brain-child though the knowledge were worthless! It wouldn't restore to life a single dead hero, nor pay for one's supper! Someone blundered at that conference at Leningrad a year ago, and the writer's firm belief is, that it was greedy, foolish little Finland.

FAIR ENOUGH

Danger

Boycott

NEW YORK, June 29.—Regarding the attempt of the CIO council of Fort Wayne, Ind., to muzzle the News-Sentinel of that city by intimidating the local advertisers, I think it should be pointed out that those advertisers and all other advertisers have as much at stake in any such fight as the proprietors of the newspapers. If they withdraw their business from our daily press under threats of boycott, the press will go broke. But it will not go out of existence. It will just cease to be a free press and will blossom forth as a subsidized press of which Germany and Italy provide many alarming examples.

The subsidized press can be very attractive for it doesn't have to count costs but the truth is not in it and, under a dictatorship, advertisers are not solicited to buy space but ordered to do so and told how much they must pay. Not only that, however, but the people are told what they must believe and I earnestly suggest that if the rank and file of the CIO in Fort Wayne comply with a boycott order from their council, thus forcing the advertisers to stop the News-Sentinel, they will strike a blow against their own freedom of belief and expression. It seems unlikely that they will comply but the threat is there and it should be considered in all its ugly implications.

Power

To Tax

spends money to advertise should always realize that it is to his own interest and the interest of American freedom that he refrain from interfering with the editorial policy of the news judgment of papers in which he buys space. The advertiser should be as independent of his judgment or prejudices in such matters as it is independent of pressure from political parties or agencies of the government, and advertising should be placed with an eye on the advertising value. And the people, in their turn, will serve themselves if they punish a business firm by withdrawing their trade because the firm buys space in a paper whose editorial and news judgment offend the political or personal prejudices of men in control of their unions.

I can hear the CIO council of Fort Wayne now saying that I am pleading for my special interest as a newspaper writer operating under the freedom of the press. But my fundamental interest is no greater than the interest of any other American. George Spelvin, American, the rank and file machinist or tool-maker in a CIO factory, has as much to lose as I have and should be wary just now because the unions, combined, by the exercise of their power to tax him, are in a position to try to set up their own press everywhere and compel the advertisers to play ball with them. In return for advertising revenue they surely would undertake to reverse the boycott process initiated in Fort Wayne and compel George Spelvin to trade only with approved stores, meaning those which buy space in the union press.

Communist

Policy

have done this already. It would be foolish to believe that any such power over news and opinion would be in innocent hands. Most of our big and powerful union leaders are dictatorial and intolerant and, by the exercise of personal discipline, they would inevitably try to control, through their press, not only the whole trade of the business community but the news and opinion, too.

For a pattern, or as we say in our trade, a dummy, of the subsidized press we have to look no further than some specimens which exist already. Charles E. Coughlin's paper was supported by a subsidy or raffleoff from a large political following. We don't need to discuss its character for we know it well. Another example, a paper published largely for the personal and political glorification of Henry Van Dalsde, of the New York electrical union, purported to tell his 20,000 members the whole story of a shooting case in which he was convicted but finally released from accusation entirely by recantation of the wounded men. But, in telling the "whole story" to the members, his paper thought it unnecessary to tell them that the wounded men had been paid $15,000 out of the union treasury. The Nazi government gave support to some publications in its effort to organize Hitlerism here and Mussolini, by subtle but effective means, acquired a vociferous Italian language press in our midst.

But our daily free press, the commercial press, if you will, is cleaner than any other and its independence has been maintained by the advertisers and the people who buy their wares. It will lose that independence and a subsidized press will take its place in the policy of the CIO council of Fort Wayne is executed generally over the country. That is a Communist policy which, in the press, is exactly the same as the Nazi and Fascist policy and the Fort Wayne American rank and file will be extending their hands for the chains of totalitarian slavery if they permit their union bosses to use them to enforce this boycott.

Sacrifice

I fear no battlefield where grasses lie.

Turned under dust and crimson clouds of clay.

I fear no endless stretch of burning sky.

Where silver ships spout flames through night.

I cannot even tremble now at seas.

Grown wild with sudden, deaf delirium.

And rearing frosted waves, as if to freeze.

Them fast before the quick bombs come.

I only pray with honest heart that I may.

If my last sacrifice be life to give.

And no precious moments then I find.

No well-worn path toward home where I loved once live.

That I may see one brilliant set of sun.

And one bird fly before my day is done.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL

POLITICAL NOTES

Mr. Tom Linder, recently exiled from the senate race, will eat fried chicken, not barbecue, on July 4.

His slim figure and saturnine face will not be seen at Newman, where Mr. Ellis Arnall will hold forth, nor will he be seen at Moultrie, where Governor Eugene Talmadge will appear.

Mr. Linder will appear at Salem campground, sing a few hymns, eat Methodist and Baptist fried chicken, and speak on the problems of the farmer.

Mr. Linder wants to make no enemies. He will be the lone state house official to make a campaign two years hence and as such will be a splendid target if anyone wants to shoot.

The chief problem of the farm today is the peach problem. The government can't buy peaches except as a surplus commodity or for lend-lease. By the time a peach has become a surplus commodity it is in a sad condition. Last year California got most of the lend-lease peach business. When Senator Richard B. Russell went around this year to the Department of Agriculture he was told there wouldn't be much buying of peaches because there isn't much shipping room. The peach crop comes and goes within the span of a few weeks and help is needed right now.

Mr. Linder can talk about that if he wishes.

As for the dark horse which Mr. Linder announced was ready to run for the senate, the horse apparently is gone. Mr. Linder recalled that race in 1944 and decided there was no reason for him to get into a fight with the Richard B. Russell following. So he scratched his dark horse from the senatorial derby.

He has a sudden passion for serenity and safety and old Salem is just the place for him on July 4.

MR. C. ROBERTS; MR. RIVERS

Mr. Columbus Roberts has removed himself from the governor's race by his statement of last week. Even if he should reconsider and enter at the last minute, the public has tired of the whole mystery. He would not be at all effective.

Senator Richard B. Russell, who had hoped to have no opposition and who still hopes for that happy condition, will sleep restlessly until he learns whether or not Mr. Roberts plans to offer for the senate. Mr. Russell would be a heavy favorite, but even so he would have to come home and campaign.

Chief interest centers, for the moment, in Mr. E. D. Rivers' expressed intent to enter the race for Governor.

One of Mr. Rivers' friends outlines Mr. Rivers' reason for entering the race as follows:

He believes that Governor Talmadge will make him a target in an effort to build up prejudice against him for the trial, which has now been postponed until the fall. He thinks it imperative for his own protection, to be able to have a voice in answering the Governor.

The indictment against him and others, he charges, are political indictments. "Two have been heard. One was an acquittal and the other a hung jury. The indictments do have a political flavor in that Governor Talmadge supplied $20,000 to carry on the investigation. He believes there now is a conspiracy to delay his trial until after the summer, during which his arch foe, who paid for the investigation, will spend weeks attacking him and building up prejudice. If he runs for office he would not expect to win but would assure himself the opportunity to fight

Dudley Glass

Perhaps it's because I am approaching my second childhood, but whatever the reason I have recently become absorbed in two books I loved years ago. There wasn't anything else in easy reach.

One of them was Dumas' "Three Musketeers." And after reading it for the 40th time—a rough guess—I still think it the greatest romantic novel ever written. It has everything—the swash-buckling quartet—for there were four, not three, because D'Artagnan attached himself from the first to the silent Athos, the poetic Aramis and the dumb Porthos. And there is the fiendish Milady, the woman without a soul; the cardinal, a king and a queen and the duke of Buckingham and perilous journeys by land and sea. Yes sir, it's got everything.

And "Treasure Island," written by the invalid Robert Louis Stevenson to please his little stepson, Lloyd Osbourne, who stipulated there should be no love interest in it—and no women whatsoever. There isn't, except the mother of the boy who tells the tale, and she fades quickly out of the picture.

"Treasure Island," too, "has everything." Except the love angle. A welcome difference. Years ago I tried to write magazine stories—and sold a few—but I never could work the woman theme into them. Not that I had anything against the fair sex. Indeed, I flattered myself I was the great lover of the ages. But I couldn't handle them in a story.

I think I am getting a bit fed up on moderns, especially those by the better writers. Except for a weekly dose of crime thrillers, which rarely deal in sex and other things we didn't discuss in my youth, I think I'll knock the dust off Charles Dickens. And I wish I knew what a good deal stole my one-volume complete O. Henry. I suspect it was my son, Dick, now residing in Birmingham. When he moved away my library moved with him. I'll admit most of it was his property—but that doesn't prevent my wishing it back.

I Want It Loud

Telephone company announces in its advertising that we mustn't expect much new equipment, being wartime. Which is all right with me, along with little gas, little sugar and no new tires in sight. I'll give my all to the cause—except my dog and a favorite bathrobe which has been just about to disintegrate for a dozen years.

But I wish I could persuade the telephone company to send a man out to put a bell on my phone which would sound like a triple fire alarm or an air raid warning.

Our telephone bell has a dulcet tone which would not disturb a sleeping canary, if we had a canary. It is sweet and musical but it needs an amplifier.

It is my custom, when at leisure and it isn't raining to retire to the back yard and soak up a little sunshine. And when I'm out there I can't hear the phone. I am constantly haunted by fear that some body important has called me. Nobody important ever has, but you never can tell.

You're Right, Sister
Anonymous postcard, bearing feminine penmanship of the grand old Spencerian type, says the writer is tired of seeing my picture, with that silly grin. So am I, sister! But it is the only face I have. If you're tired of gazing at it once a day, think of me shaking and brushing what's left of my hair and tying a necktie.

It was Woodrow Wilson—before he was President, I am sure, who penned a quatrain about his somewhat severe facade. I've forgotten the first of it, but it winds up: "For me, I don't mind it. For I am behind it. It's people in front it offends."

Sister, that picture isn't there at my request. Several months ago the big boss thought readers would like to know what the feature writers looked like. I don't know what effect it had on the readers of Ralph McGill and Ralph T. Jones and Gladstone Williams, but my fan mail fell off 65 per cent in the following week. And just when I thought I was building up a great romance with a wealthy widow in Newnan. There hasn't been a darn line from her since Kenneth Rogers shot that mug.

of shipping Georgia's first watermelons of the season. More than 150 freight car loads have gone north and west from that region. I wish I could enjoy watermelon as much as I'd like to. Never a season goes by that I don't wish I'd eaten more watermelon when watermelons were available. But for some reason I don't. Perhaps because one melon looks so darn big for two people.

As a small boy in Florida I used to help pack watermelons in freight cars, just for the fun of it. A "cull" melon, one that was bruised, was cast aside. It was our delight to bust one open by dropping it on the railroad track and eat the crimson heart—one big hunk of juice and sweetness. Hot, but good. After that there would be a melon rind battle, with boys dodging behind freight cars. And, take it from me, a chunk of watermelon rind received just back of the ear can hurt.

Charter Issued To United War Work Group

L. L. Gellerstedt Is Elected Chairman of Corporation.

In the future, activities of the United War Work Fund will be carried on in the name of the United War Work Fund, Inc. A charter for the organization was granted recently by the Fulton superior court. The first meeting of the incorporators held yesterday and officers and members of the board of trustees were elected.

Officers of the corporation will be L. L. Gellerstedt, chairman; P. S. Arkwright, vice chairman; J. D. Robinson, secretary; Boyce M. Edens, secretary, and Robert Strickland, treasurer. The officers also will be members of the board of trustees. Other members of the board elected yesterday were:

DeKalb Organizes United Fund Drive

A meeting to organize a United War Fund drive in DeKalb county was held at 12 o'clock yesterday at the Candler hotel, in Decatur. Major Trammell Scott was the guest speaker, and C. H. Blount, county-wide chairman, presided. Roy Freeman, Decatur and Druid Hills chairman, appointed his committees for the drive, and announced a house-to-house canvass campaign, beginning July 7, by the air raid wardens. Miss Tully Smith, county chairman excluding Decatur and Druid Hills, said her committees were ready for the drive.

TEACHERS BECOME PUPILS—Going back to school are teachers from small towns and rural communities who are attending a summer clinic at Emory University which expounds new teaching techniques. The idea is that pupils will learn by doing rather than by being shown. Experimenting with the new idea are (left to right) Dorothy Bragg, of Atlanta; Mrs. T. L. Freeman, of Avondale Estates; Julia Teasley, of Monroe.

Summer Clinic At Emory New Teachers' Aid Choice Fryers

Workshop Experiment To Be Tested This Fall on Students.

Hundreds of little Johnnies and Marys probably don't know it yet, but they're going to be the "guinea pigs" this fall for about 65 Georgia school principals and teachers who are saturating themselves daily with generous doses of a new concoction in teaching technique on the Emory University campus.

This tonic is being administered at the first principals' and teachers' workshop to be held in Georgia since the experiment is being watched with considerable interest by educators.

Teachers and school administrators from Ringgold to Rydal and from Trenton to Temple are attending the six-week clinic at which the old-fashioned methods of pumping knowledge into Junior's skull are strictly taboo.

Of course, some of these new-fangled ideas on teaching already have invaded the big city schools but they haven't yet trickled down to the small town and rural areas. Reaching these schools is one of the principal objectives of the workshop.

Summer School Sub.
It's really a substitute for summer school. Instead of going to some college for the summer and taking a lot of dull academic courses, the teachers enroll in the workshop and concentrate on finding a solution to some problem which is peculiar to their community.

In other words, they are doing what they want to do. And when they get back to their respective schools they propose to follow

Richland Thief Steals Judge's Choice Fryers

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.

RICHLAND, Ga., June 29—Chicken thieves have been rather bold and efficient here this week, having entered the yard and chicken pens of Judge T. L. Bishop and carried away 13 of his best fryers. Judge Bishop is inclined to doubt his ability to give the thief a fair and impartial trial, having already formed an opinion as to the severity of the penalty that should be administered to any person who would deliberately come into his yard and carry away these fine chickens that he had been saving for his own appetite.

This same method in teaching their pupils.

Take, for example, a teacher from Rockmart, Fayetteville, Cedartown or any other smaller town. Her school needs a more thorough program of health and physical education. The children aren't strong and vigorous. So she takes her problem to him and during the six weeks she holds conferences and reads and follows other workshop suggestions for remedying the deficiency in her local school.

Workshop Suggestions.
At the workshop she finds a staff of competent authorities. One of the members, she learns, is an expert on health problems. She takes her problem to him and during the six weeks she holds conferences and reads and follows other workshop suggestions for remedying the deficiency in her local school.

At the end of the state department of education, who is directing the workshop, explained how this same procedure could be used in the local school.

"Maybe you have a pupil who wants to learn to punctuate," he said. "Perhaps he wants to be a writer, a newspaperman maybe. The idea is that he should be allowed free rein in following up that ambition. He shouldn't be given rigid assignments in punctuation and told to do them 'or else.' He should be encouraged to find out things about punctuation for himself. And at the end of a definite period he should be graded on how far he has gone in reaching his objective."

Memorandum.
It seems there are a lot of things about present-day teaching practices that are "all wet," according to Cook. For example, he said, there has been too much emphasis on memory. The child who could memorize his lesson the best and remember the most on examination got the best marks. Yet, he added, some of the best executives in the business world have poor memories.

Cook also explained that in many cases students who have initiative and vision and want to do things for themselves are kicked out of school because they won't follow a set routine. "They are sometimes referred to as 'social rebels,'" he said. "Yet many of them are fighting today on foreign battlefields to preserve our democracy and the American way of life. Our schools must learn to cultivate the talents of these overly active boys and girls."

One of the offerings of the Emory workshop is a course in arts and crafts. The teachers learn to draw and construct games and do other things that put "oomph" into this business of learning.

WORLD'S LARGEST SELLER AT

Dorothy Thompson Explains: Why We Must Defeat Germany

Let us turn our eyes away from Egypt for a moment to consider how the Nazis celebrate their successes. For this gives us some inkling of what a Nazi victory would mean.

Normally speaking, men are magnanimous in victory. The extremists of war become mitigated as nations feel themselves strong. Here, in America, we go further; there is much discussion of how we can treat the Germans decently after our victory.

But note that every new Nazi success is immediately followed by a wave of terror—in Germany itself, and against the occupied countries. The reaction is that if the pathological bully, who, feeling his victim weaken, breaks out in barbaric sadism.

Victory Speeches.
Officials who have dealt with German prisoners of war, and Germans who have had experience with Nazis interned with them in concentration camps all tell the same story. Let me quote one of them verbatim:

"It was interned along with other Germans in England when war broke out. All of us were German patriots, but a few of us were anti-Nazis. When France fell and it seemed as though the German troops would be in England in a matter of days, life in that camp was a torture. During all the hours of the day, the Nazis made continual speeches—wild, bestial, blasphemous outbreaks of triumph and hate. Those few of us who, filled with nausea at these hideous promises of torture and revenge, dared to say a calming word, were beaten up."

One German officer, a prisoner of war, said recently, recalling those days, "Do you remember how these people behaved when they thought victory certain? Like wild beasts. It would have been horrible if Hitler had won then. There must be a God."

Munich Incident.
That is a German officer speaking, who still hopes that "Germany" will not be utterly defeated, but shudders contemplating the excesses that would follow a Nazi victory.

What happens in the concentration camps follows the pattern of the whole history of Nazism in Germany.

Every Nazi success has been followed by new excesses.

Let us take the most dramatic victory they ever had: Munich. In the Nazi propaganda Munich represented the unification of the German race in one state—the brotherhood of the German nation in Europe. It occurred in September, 1938. But what happened?

Two weeks afterward a new wave of persecution against the Catholic church occurred. Almost simultaneously a new purge in the German high command took place. The chief of the German general staff, General Beck, was dismissed. Exactly five weeks after Munich, the greatest pogrom in Nazi history was put on, with the turning of the synagogues, the confiscation of the bulk of German-Jewish fortunes, and the arrest of almost every male of Jewish blood in the country.

Demands on Vichy.
After the fall of France hope was strong in that country that a collaborationist France could purchase humane and normal treatment. Not one of the balls held out in Nazi propaganda was delivered. Recent successes on the eastern front have been celebrated by new demands on Vichy and by the offer to release half a million prisoners of war—for forced labor in Germany. This is called "freedom."

The Nazi successes of the last days have been accompanied by a new outburst of terror in the occupied countries.

But in Germany itself the successes are celebrated by two measures, one economic—a new expropriation of the middle classes; and the other political; a new purge of so-called "anti-social" elements and "enemies of the state."

The economic oppression consists of a decree forcing all holders of industrial securities, except those actually in the hands of the industrialists themselves, to exchange them for treasury bonds, thus taking worthless paper in exchange for liens on real property.

The political measures are linked to this. Oppression creates antagonisms, and the antagonisms are to be liquidated by an intensification of terrorism.

Now, there is method in this. The Nazis are trying to win the war as a condition for the realization of their real program, which not even in Germany has yet been completely fulfilled. Hitler has a vision of a Nazi Utopia and every victory encourages him to take another step in achieving it. That Utopia is a super-feudal world order run by the Nazi party and policed by its thugs. Successful, the Nazis will not only persecute the church but suppress it for any black magical religion of blood sacrifice, adequate to the soul of the whole system. Total victory would therefore mean total terror, without relief, and endless, against the helpless and unarmed.

I wish I could shout to the world, and in especial to every young man with a gun, and with an eloquence that I do not possess, that every Nazi success brings nearer a blood bath and a blood lust, such as even the war

Judge Orders Jury To Acquit Frank B. Eaves

Says Prosecution Failed To Show Evidence of Crime.

Frank B. Eaves, for 30 years building inspector of Fulton county, yesterday was exonerated of a charge of embezzlement of $100 of public funds, Judge Paul S. Etheridge, of superior court, directing a verdict of acquittal.

Eaves was charged with misappropriating money deposited by tennis players at Adams park in slot machines supplying electric lights at night. When Assistant Solicitor General Quincy Arnold announced that the state rested its case, Judge Etheridge excused the jury, then said to the prosecutor: "Do you think you have made out a criminal case?"

Arnold replied that he thought he had.

"I don't think so," said the judge. "There has been no evidence of any defalcation on the part of the defendant."

He then directed the jury and directed a verdict of acquittal.

"Perhaps I am doing the defendant an injustice," he said, "but it is my business according to law and there is no evidence here to convict."

Mrs. Mabel Abbott MacNeill, county treasurer, testified that Eaves in 1938 turned over to her $79 collected from the tennis court machines and that he failed to turn over any more from that source until he gave her $24 last April 16. The state sought to prove that this was done after the grand jury had begun an investigation.

Other witnesses were Lynn Hudson, a member of the March-April grand jury; Willis Collier, county electrician; J. P. Hammons, of the state department; and Sheppard Price, an employee of the building department.

Five Georgia Counties Get More Gasoline

Senator George Insists on Fuel To Move Perishables.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—(P) The office of Senator George, Democrat, Georgia, reported today the office of Petroleum Coordinator Ickes had approved an order for 15 per cent increase in the base gallonage of gasoline for five southwest Georgia counties.

The order provided more gasoline for Colquitt, Thomas, Brooks, Cook and Lowndes counties.

George said he would insist upon increased gallonage sufficient to enable farmers in all parts of the state to market their melons, fruits, beans and other perishable products.

Cotton Futures Recover

New York Range.

NEW YORK, June 29.—(P)—Cotton futures prices rallied today after early hesitation and closed with gains of 50 to 60 cents a bale.

Mill and trade buying was a steady influence.

Trading volume was limited by inaction of many professional operators and trade sources who were disinclined to take positions in the face of the continued house-senate deadlock on the agricultural appropriations bill.

The market was helped in the late dealings by news that the War Production Board planned 1942 cotton fabric production at 12,000,000 yards with military requirements taking 50 per cent of this record output.

Average Price.

NEW ORLEANS, June 30.—(P)—The average price of middling 15-16-inch cotton today at 10 designated southern spot markets was 13 points higher at 19.20 cents a pound; average for the past 30 market days 19.07; middling 1/4-inch average 18.53.

Greer Spent Time In Political Activity, His Counsel Asserts

By CELESTINE SIBLEY.

The "plain, unvarnished truth" about John W. Greer Jr.'s tenure of the office of State Highway Department purchasing agent is that he had the title and the salary of purchasing agent but by direction of his superiors spent his time in political activity, Greer's counsel declared in federal court yesterday.

RAF Batters Rail Center in North France

Submarine Base at St. Nazaire Again Given Going-Over.

LONDON, June 29.—(P)—The RAF's growing offensive against Germany centered on the important railway junction of Hazebrouck in northern France today following night raids in which the workshops and port facilities of the submarine base at St. Nazaire were bombed.

The British sent five planes over Hazebrouck, but shot down three Germans. A few dozen bombers were sent against St. Nazaire.

The attack followed the great Saturday night raid on Bremen where many of the undersea raiders are constructed. The second raid in three nights and one which was reported to have left the city in ruins.

The British announced that two German planes were destroyed during the night, one by the Czech night fighter ace, Karel Kutlwa, was shot down. He now has an official bag of 13 night bombers and six others.

One British bomber was missing after the St. Nazaire raid and a sweep over German air fields and railways in northern France.

The Nazi air force, in retaliation, struck for 40 minutes at the southwest coast town of Weston-Super-Mare, causing a number of casualties.

Mercer To Train Aviation Cadets

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. MACON, Ga., June 29.—Naval aviation cadets will be assigned to Mercer University for eight weeks of preliminary flight and ground training, it was announced today.

Ten will live in the dormitories and put in 240 hours in ground school courses every two months.

The cadets, who are waiting to go to Athens to pre-flight school, will receive civilian pilot training during the wait, officials said.

After-the-War Comeback Seen For Farm Life

Rural Sections Will Hold New Allure Rivaling City, Leader Says.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. ATHENS, Ga., June 29.—Youth, when the war is over, will put new blood into agriculture, making farm life the most alluring and zestful in world history, it was predicted today by a worker of the Agricultural Extension Service.

Pointing out that agriculture will become the greatest industry after the conflict ends, J. Lloyd Burrell, youth worker and assistant editor for the Extension Service, said thousands of rural young people, together with hordes of city youths, will undertake the job of building a new world agriculture.

"Youth, with its vigorous strength and initiative, will harness all available resources of the lands into a producing power that will feed the world," he asserted. "Mechanized farming and science in agriculture, which will surely come in abundance, require ingenuity, and thus will attract young men in the coming era of high production efficiency."

"But, despite the utilization of resources in a big-time way, these young leaders will not waste the country's wealth. More than ever before, they will carefully conserve and build the soil to create a continuous level of production."

Burrell explained that the rural community will be an integral part of civilization. Country churches and schools, he said, will take the lead in the development of a high plane of spiritual and social life. Mechanization and other developments will further increase the conveniences of farm living, exceeding the present-day allure of the city, the editor continued.

T. Grady Head Qualifies for Attorney's Post

Former Revenue Commissioner Will Oppose Evans.

Cash in the hands of the State Democratic Executive Committee yesterday indicated a race for attorney general between T. Grady Head, former state commissioner of revenue, and Randall Evans Jr., speaker of the house of representatives.

Head qualified for the attorney general campaign early yesterday afternoon; Evans had qualified previously.

The job Head and Evans will seek will be vacated by Attorney General Ellis Arnall, a candidate for Governor.

Head, who lives in Ringgold, Ga., up in the northwest corner of the state, has represented Cataosa county in the state legislature. Evans lives at Thomas, the home of the late Tom Watson.

Another candidate to qualify yesterday was Judge R. N. Hardeman, of the middle circuit. Judge Hardeman, who lives at Louisville, seeks re-election.

At Bainbridge, Representative E. E. Cox, of Camilla, qualified for re-election under rules of the second congressional district executive committee, according to an announcement from Chairman H. G. Bell.

W. C. Hodges, Hinesville, attorney, qualified as candidate for judge of the Atlantic judiciary circuit. The incumbent is Joseph T. Grice, of Greenville.

Late in the afternoon, Hal C. Hutchens, of Dallas, qualified to succeed himself as solicitor general of the Tallapoosa circuit.

Athens Judge Opens War on Tire Abuses

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. ATHENS, Ga., June 29.—It's going to prove costly to car drivers who "burn up the streets" (and hard-to-get tires) and to thoughtless others who endanger tires by breaking glass in the thoroughfares of this city.

City Recorder Vincent Matthews in a pointed (and last) warning to citizens who fall into either of the above classes, has cleared the decks for action. And the action will take place in his court, with him doing the talking.

The judge has received numerous complaints about young folks and delivery boys, and trucks speeding, with consequent danger to life and tires, and so many about broken glass that he made a tour of the streets on the city bus line. What he saw confirmed the complaints, will bring drastic action against violators appearing in his court.

MacArthur to Get Medal At Private Rites Today

SAN FRANCISCO, June 29.—(P)—The Congressional Medal awarded to General Douglas MacArthur by the President and congress of the United States March 25 will be presented to General MacArthur by the American minister, Nelson Johnson, at a private ceremony tomorrow. Radio Melbourne said today in a broadcast received here by CBS.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief. Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatism, pain, leg pain, loss of pep and energy, retching up night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

U.S. Suspension Of Stewart Is Affirmed Here

Judge Underwood Holds Evidence Sufficient for Action.

Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood yesterday affirmed the action of the United States Civil Service Commission in suspending J. E. B. Stewart, director of unemployment compensation for the state of Georgia, for violation of the Hatch act.

The Civil Service Commission, after a lengthy hearing last winter, held there was sufficient evidence to warrant a conviction of Stewart for allegedly forcing government employees to contribute to a political campaign fund. Stewart was suspended for 18 months as a result of the commission's action.

In a long decree handed down yesterday morning Judge Underwood held "there was substantial evidence to support the determination and order of the commission."

Stewart issued a statement yesterday afternoon to the effect that he had not read Judge Underwood's decision but "regardless of his decision, the fight I have been making for the right of free American citizens to work on war projects without paying exorbitant fees union racketeers will be continued."

Drive To Boost U. S. Salvage Opens July 13

Advertising Campaign Will Be Launched in 11,000 Papers.

NEW YORK, June 29.—(P)—Advertising Council announced today that a national advertising campaign to promote a national salvage program in co-operation with the government would be started July 13 through more than 11,000 newspapers.

The council, a volunteer group composed of newspaper, magazine, radio and advertising representatives, said the petroleum, rubber and automotive industries would set up receiving centers to collect junk—such as old rubber, rags, rope, burlap bags and waste fats—needed by the government.

In addition to newspaper advertising, magazine pages and radio announcements would be used to "sell" the idea of salvage as a continuing effort for the duration of the war.

The council said a $2,000,000 appropriation had been obtained from 362 industrial leaders who compose the American Industries Salvage Committee to finance the program as a patriotic contribution to the war.

STEWART DRAFT QUOTA.

Cebu City Levelled in Reprisal For Filipino Guerrilla Activity

WASHINGTON, June 29.—(P)—Japanese vengeance forces have razed Cebu, second city of the Philippines, Lieutenant Colonel Carlos P. Romulo, of General Douglas MacArthur's Australian staff, reported on his arrival here today.

The town of about 100,000 was leveled May 22 in reprisal for continued guerrilla activity by Cebu civilians, Colonel Romulo reported. The Japanese later broadcast to all the Philippines that the Cebu action was a warning against further guerrilla activity.

"Even the women were sniping at Japanese occupation forces," Romulo said. "They could not stop them. Burning the town will not stop them, either."

Colonel Romulo is in Washington on a secret mission for General MacArthur. He conferred with officials of the Philippine commission's office and President Quezon's staff.

He was recently awarded the Pulitzer prize for "distinguished correspondence" when he was editor of the Philippine Herald before the war. The Japanese, immediately after landing on Luzon, put a price on his head for the new war articles which forecast their moves in the Pacific.

He was the last man off Bataan, being evacuated on orders of General Wainwright 12 hours before the troops left the peninsula April 9.

The island of Cebu, on which the city of Cebu is located, was occupied by about a division of Japanese troops early in April. Later most of these soldiers were withdrawn for an attack on Manila.

Electrical Inspector's Office To Go Unfilled

The office of Daniel W. Boone, the city's chief electrical inspector, will not be filled when Boone goes into the Army early next month, it was announced yesterday by Dewey L. Johnson, city electrician.

Johnson, in announcing the office will remain vacant until Boone returns, said he was doing it in order to prevent a cut in the salaries of city employees.

Boone will soon be commissioned a lieutenant in the Army Engineering Corps.

The Army and Navy in Georgia

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

FORT BENNING, Ga., June 29.—Colonel Walter Fulton, commanding officer of Fort Benning, will retire from active duty tomorrow, but on orders from the War Department will return as head of this military city the following day, July 1.

COL. WALTER SCOTT FULTON.

Orders from the Adjutant General's Department in Washington listed Colonel Fulton's retirement as necessary under the requirements of an act of congress, but the same order stipulated that the colonel, a veteran Army officer, would be returned to active duty in his present assignment and at his present station the day following his retirement.

So, at the most, Colonel Fulton, who has been at Fort Benning since 1940, will have only a few seconds' respite from the complex and myriad duties of commanding officer of a huge military reservation such as Fort Benning.

The task of supervising the administration of a post such as Fort Benning can be compared with the work facing the mayor of a city of tens of thousands of residents. In addition the position is made doubly difficult because the population of a post such as Fort Benning is constantly changing under the exigencies of a nation at war. Despite this constant state of fluctuation, the proper administration must be carried on whether positions are filled with capable, experienced, or new inexperienced officers and men.

Colonel Fulton's headquarters are in a modestly appointed room at post headquarters, where he has under him a staff of officers and enlisted men. He is now serving as squadron flight instructor and educational officer at the Jacksonville Naval Air Station.

GEORGE P. FOOTE GETS PROMOTION. Announcement of the promotion of George P. Foote, 717 Spring street, from ensign to lieutenant (j. g.) was made yesterday at the U. S. Naval Air Station at Jacksonville, Fla.

Son of Mrs. C. Jarrell, of Monroe, Lieutenant Foote attended Tech High school and was graduated from Georgia Tech in 1941. He is now on duty at the Jacksonville Air Station as permanent officer of the day.

PRIVATE FORTNER BECOMES CORPORAL. Announcement comes from the Harlingen Army Gunner School, Harlingen, Texas, of the promotion of Jack Fortner Jr. from private first class to corporal. His home is 1376 Sylvan road, Southwest.

CHARLES FULGHUM LANDS IN AUSTRALIA. Charles R. Fulghum, member of the Coast Artillery, anti-aircraft, has just arrived in Australia.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Fulghum, of Buchanan, P. O. C. R. Fulghum.

THREE ENLIST FOR AVIATION TRAINING. Francis Marion Greene, 720 Church street, Decatur; Ted Albert Landrum, Route 1, Austell, and Charles Andrew Wright, Route 3, Alpharetta, have enlisted for Naval aviation training. They will report for active duty soon.

GREENE, 21, a native of New Jersey, is a graduate of Leesburg High school, Leesburg, Fla., and a former student at The Citadel, there he was a member of the basketball team. He is employed by a Decatur drug company.

Landrum, 18, the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Landrum and a graduate of Tech High school, now is attending Georgia Tech. He has completed 38 hours of C. P. T. training.

Wright, 19, a graduate of the Milton High school, is now a student at North Georgia College, where he is a member of the football team.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Wright.

MACARTHUR "RESCUER" LISTED AS MISSING. Navy Department records have listed Ensign Bond Murray, on whose boat General MacArthur was taken off Corregidor, as "missing," it was learned here yesterday.

According to advices received from the Navy Department, Ensign Murray was serving in the Cebu area at the time of its capitulation. The letter follows in part: "A report received by this bureau from that area indicated that at the time of its capitulation Ensign Murray was in charge of a group of men. He had orders to be flown out if he wanted to, but refused, considering it his duty to stay with his men."

The report further said that in all probability he is a prisoner of war.

He is the son of Judge and Mrs. J. T. Murray, of Danielsville. His brother Hamil is a student at Emory University.

EXECUTIVES ATTEND TRAINING SCHOOL. Four local businessmen are among those executives of specialized businesses and industries who are now being trained at the new Air Forces Training school at Miami Beach, Fla.

They are Captain Royal B. Primm, former branch manager of the famous OLYMPIAN, too, is going through on schedule, on its daily trips from Lake Michigan to Puget Sound. Olympian accommodations include standard and tourist sleeping cars, modern coaches and dining car providing meals at reasonable prices. All cars air conditioned.

Order Forcing Return Truck Hauls Delayed

ODT Postpone Action Pending Further Work on Measure.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—(AP)—The Office of Defense Transportation today postponed from July 1 to July 15 the effective date of orders requiring certain trucks to carry return loads.

ODT said the postponement was issued to allow more time for a general revision of orders governing trucks operated by common, contract, and private carriers in over-the-road service.

As originally drawn, the orders prohibited trucks from returning to their point of origin unless loaded to at least 75 per cent of capacity—considered the minimum efficiency standard for wartime commercial vehicle operation in light of the rubber shortage and lack of new equipment.

Under the postponement, trucks may continue to return empty or only partially loaded if no cargoes are available.

Atlantan Spent Birthday at Lifeboat Oars

Byron Shirley's Vessel Torpedoed; Plane Finds Survivors.

Byron Shirley, of 1210 Boulevard drive, N. E., was back home yesterday with a birthday present he'll never forget.

Shirley was on a ship coming from Panama to the United States when it was struck by torpedoes. He finished celebrating his birthday by rowing the lifeboat in which he and other survivors escaped.

Life in the lifeboat went on for 82 hours before the survivors landed on a jungle beach, to be picked up 36 hours later after a plane spotted them.

Shirley, foreman on a construction job, had been in Panama for eight months.

While in the lifeboat, each survivor got two ounces of water a day, some vitamin tablets and chocolate wafers. He couldn't decide whether lack of sleep or water was toughest, "but the fellows who didn't have on anything but their undersuits from sunburn."

"It's hard to realize just what you go through unless you've been in the same fix," Shirley said last night.

"Well, that's some birthday present—getting torpedoed," one of his friends said.

"Anyhow, it's one I won't forget," Shirley smiled.

College Park May Get Water From Atlanta

Plan for Supplemental Service to Air Port Studied.

Prospect that the city may agree to provide water for College Park and a supplementary service for the municipal airport was advanced yesterday following a conference between Atlanta and College Park officials.

Mayor W. E. Sitton led a delegation of College Park officials to the Atlanta city hall to confer with Mayor Hartsfield and other Atlanta department heads with a view of arranging for a new main to connect with the College Park system. Under the proposed plan, the city would wholesale the water to College Park, which would provide its own distributing system in much the same manner as the city now sells water to Hapeville.

Financial Outlook For City Is Dark

Asserting that the city's financial outlook is none too bright, Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, chairman of council's finance committee, yesterday called a meeting of the committee for 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the city hall to begin a study of the fiscal problems facing the Hartsfield administration.

Gilliam said he had not yet progressed enough in study of the city's financial status to say whether or not the committee can recommend continuation of the 10 per cent bonus voted the first part of the year and which expires today unless renewed for the remaining six months of the year.

German Saboteurs May Face U. S. Military Court for Trial

Byron Shirley's Vessel Torpedoed; Plane Finds Survivors.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—(AP)—There were indications tonight that a military court might try the eight men accused of landing from German submarines on the east coast to sabotage the American war effort.

This raised the possibility that the death penalty might be sought, but Justice Department officials declined to speculate along that line, on the grounds that final decisions had not been reached.

Attorney General Biddle issued a statement saying: "The attorney general and members of his staff have been in constant consultation throughout the day with the secretary of war, the judge advocate general, and other War Department officials."

"The two departments are in substantial agreement upon the steps to be taken in the prosecution of the eight German saboteurs who were apprehended by the FBI shortly after landing on our coasts from Nazi submarines."

"A further and more detailed announcement concerning this matter may be expected within 48 hours."

Among the problems raised in connection with the prosecution of the case is the fact that two of the eight men are American citizens. Another question which must be settled and on which nothing has yet been made public is whether the members of the groups landed from the submarines were members of the German military. If so, they could be treated as spies because they were found in this country in civilian uniform. The penalty for spies is death, the same as it would be in the case of treason, a charge which could be placed only against American citizens.

Pictures Show Church Group Serious Injury Opens War on To Gneisenau Wearing Coats

Nazi Battleship May Be 'Out for Duration,' British Say.

LONDON, June 29.—(AP)—Photographs made by reconnaissance planes showed tonight the German battleship Gneisenau was so badly damaged that three main 11-inch gun turrets had to be dismantled and 30 feet of forecastle deck removed, leading to the British belief that she "may be out for the duration."

The 26,000-ton Gneisenau has been removed from Kiel to Gdynia, former Polish port, where the Air Ministry said it would be impossible to make large-scale repairs required to put her back into service.

The damage was inflicted, the Air Ministry said, in RAF attacks on Brest and during the dash of the Nazi fleet from that French port through the channel.

The photographs were made in daylight after an attack on Kiel February 25.

They showed the German depot ship Monte Olivia or a liner of the same class burned out. The Gneisenau was moored near this vessel and the Air Ministry said "it is most probable that she also was hit on that night."

Search of Gulf Coast Is Ordered by Mexico

MEXICO CITY, June 29.—(AP)—The government today ordered a thorough search of the entire Gulf coast area for enemy aliens who might collaborate with submarine commanders in attacks on Mexican shipping. The order was issued as a result of the sinkings of the tankers Tuxpan and Choapas Saturday.

'Uncle Sam' Steals March On Atlanta Society Editors

By SALLY FORTH.

... FRIENDS OF LOVELY Elizabeth Pearce, whose engagement to Lieutenant Malcolm Long Jr. was announced on Sunday, made an exciting discovery when they telephoned the Pearce residence to felicitate the bride-to-be. The surprise news was that Elizabeth and "Mac" were on their wedding trip, having been married on Saturday evening, too late to notify the newspapers of their change in plans. It was an accidental case of having put the card before the horse!

Since Elizabeth was forewarned only three hours in advance of the wedding and there was such a scramble getting her trousseau packed and making hurried arrangements for the nuptials, no one thought of notifying the society editors, anyway.

The change in plans was due to "Mac" being apprised on Saturday of the fact that it would be some time before he would have another furlough. So he wired Elizabeth to that effect, suggesting that they be married upon his arrival at 8 o'clock that evening. Still another change in plans resulted in "Mac's" plane being nearly an hour late in arriving, so that the ceremony had to be put off until 9 o'clock.

The rites were solemnized in the parlors of the First Baptist church, and were witnessed by the immediate families and a few intimate friends, who were summoned via telephone. The vows were spoken before an improvised altar of white summer flowers and palms.

It is interesting to note that it was the last wedding at which Dr. Ellis A. Fuller officiated before leaving Atlanta yesterday for his new position as president of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary. Sentiment was the guiding factor in the selection of Dr. Fuller as the minister, for he baptized both Elizabeth and "Mac," and both have been attending his church ever since they entered Sunday school there together. Besides being a principal in Dr. Fuller's last Atlanta wedding, "Mac" was among the first babies baptized by the beloved minister in the new new church building.

Another bit of sentiment is attached to the lovely gold circlet used in the ceremony, for it was the wedding ring that had belonged to "Mac's" great-grandmother, and had also been used at other weddings in his family.

Elizabeth presented a lovely picture as a bride. She wore a modish ensemble combining gray and blue, a gray hat and gray accessories. A spray of fuchsia-throated orchids adorned her left shoulder.

Mrs. Robert Milton Pearce chose for her daughter's wedding a lavender and blue printed model, and "Mac's" mother, Mrs. Malcolm J. Long Sr., was attired in a costume of blue chiffon. Both wore hats to match their dresses and their flowers were gardenias.

Immediately after the ceremony Elizabeth and "Mac" left for a brief wedding trip, and today are en route to Cudahy, Wis., where the latter, who is in the Army Air Corps, is stationed at General Mitchell Field.

... LAST WEEK Sally told you about a brand-new vegetable, celtuce, that made its first appearance this spring. Now it develops that an Atlantan, Mrs. Donald McClain, has the vegetable growing luxuriantly in her garden on Cherokee road. In fact, she and her family have been enjoying it since early spring.

It seems that Mrs. McClain, who is an inveterate gardener, saw the seed advertised in a Philadelphia seed catalogue, and always eager to try new things, she ordered some. First she planted it in a seed bed and when the small plants appeared, she transplanted them to her garden. Celtuce thrives in this locale, she says, and is one of the most versatile vegetables she knows. It may be eaten raw like celery, used in place of lettuce, cooked as greens, or eaten like asparagus with hollandaise sauce or French dressing.

Mrs. McClain has between two and three acres in her garden, and it is worked entirely under her expert supervision, now that everyone's garden forms a cog in the defense program. All the fresh vegetables that her family needs are produced there, such as peas, beans, corn, potatoes, radishes, carrots, etc. Another that she grows with great success and uses as a dried lentil for winter menus is the soy bean. "It is so hard to get out of the shell when green," she says, "that I wait until it dries and then use it as any other white bean."

Those of you who recall that milk made from the soy bean saved the lives of thousands of children in the Orient will realize its nutritive value, and perhaps you, too, will want to try it.

Mr. and Mrs. Youngs came from New York to Atlanta last October. They made their home at the Biltmore all winter, but when early spring came they moved to a home on Habersham road. Mr. Youngs is president of the much-discussed Plantation Pipe Line, which proved Atlanta's good fortune, for it brought him and Mrs. Youngs here to live.

Mr. Youngs is a native North Carolinian, and lovely Mrs.

Miss Sturgis and Lieut. Jones Are Married in Montgomery

The marriage of Miss Mary Evelyn Sturgis, of Atlanta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Sturgis, to Thomas Stanley Jones, lieutenant, Army Air Corps, of Decatur, Ala., was solemnized at the First Methodist church, of Montgomery. Dr. Gaston Foote performed the ceremony.

Nuptial music was presented by Miss Judson Carlton, soloist, and Miss Mary Little Murphree, pianist. An arrangement of white gladioli, carnations and Easter lilies centered the altar, which was banked with palms and ferns. Twelve-branched candelabra held white tapers at either side.

The ushers were J. R. Sturgis and J. G. Carlton. The groomsmen were Maurice Jones. Miss Dorothy Sturgis, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Miss Martha Harriette Thrasher, of Montgomery, was bridesmaid. They were gowned in yellow and quissete and carried bouquets of gladioli, blue delphinium and daisies, tied with delphinium blue tulle and ribbon. They wore coronets of matching flowers in their hair.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, A. E. Sturgis, of Montgomery, and acting as best

Miss Jernigan, Mr. Weyman Are Wed at Quiet Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Mary Jernigan and Fontaine Weyman was quietly solemnized at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon at St. Luke's Episcopal church, with only the immediate members of the bridal couple's families present. Rev. J. Milton Richardson read the marriage service, and there were no attendants.

The engagement of Miss Jernigan to Mr. Weyman was announced recently, but no definite plans for the marriage were made until Mr. Weyman arrived Sunday on furlough from Ester Field, La., where he is serving in the United States Air Corps.

The bride is the lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ormand L. Jernigan, prominent Atlantans. She chose for her marriage a smart navy blue cotton frock, fashioned with a brief jacket which was applied in small red and white butterflies. Her hat was a wide-brimmed green straw, and her shoes and accessories were navy blue. She carried a small white prayer book, showered with stephanotis.

Mr. Weyman and his bride left for a two-week wedding trip, after which he will return to duty at Ester Field. He is the son of Mrs. Samuel T. Weyman and the late Mr. Weyman, who was one of Atlanta's best-known real estate executives.

DO-SI-DO!

Sashiate on the 4th in Rich's
"Southern Highlands" fashions!

Who'd a-thunk it a year ago? We're local yokels. Yep, you 'n me!

No more sashayin' out-a-town in them fancy automobiles.

We're aimin' to celebrate this July 4th right at home, jest like our Southern ancestors! While the old folks set on the porch

'n snooze, we'll tune up the fiddle... "Did-dy ump did-dy id-dy."

We'll corner a square-dancer; "Circle left and sashiate."

We'll play "Chase the Squirrel." We'll roast

a pig, mebbe two. And come those shadders down

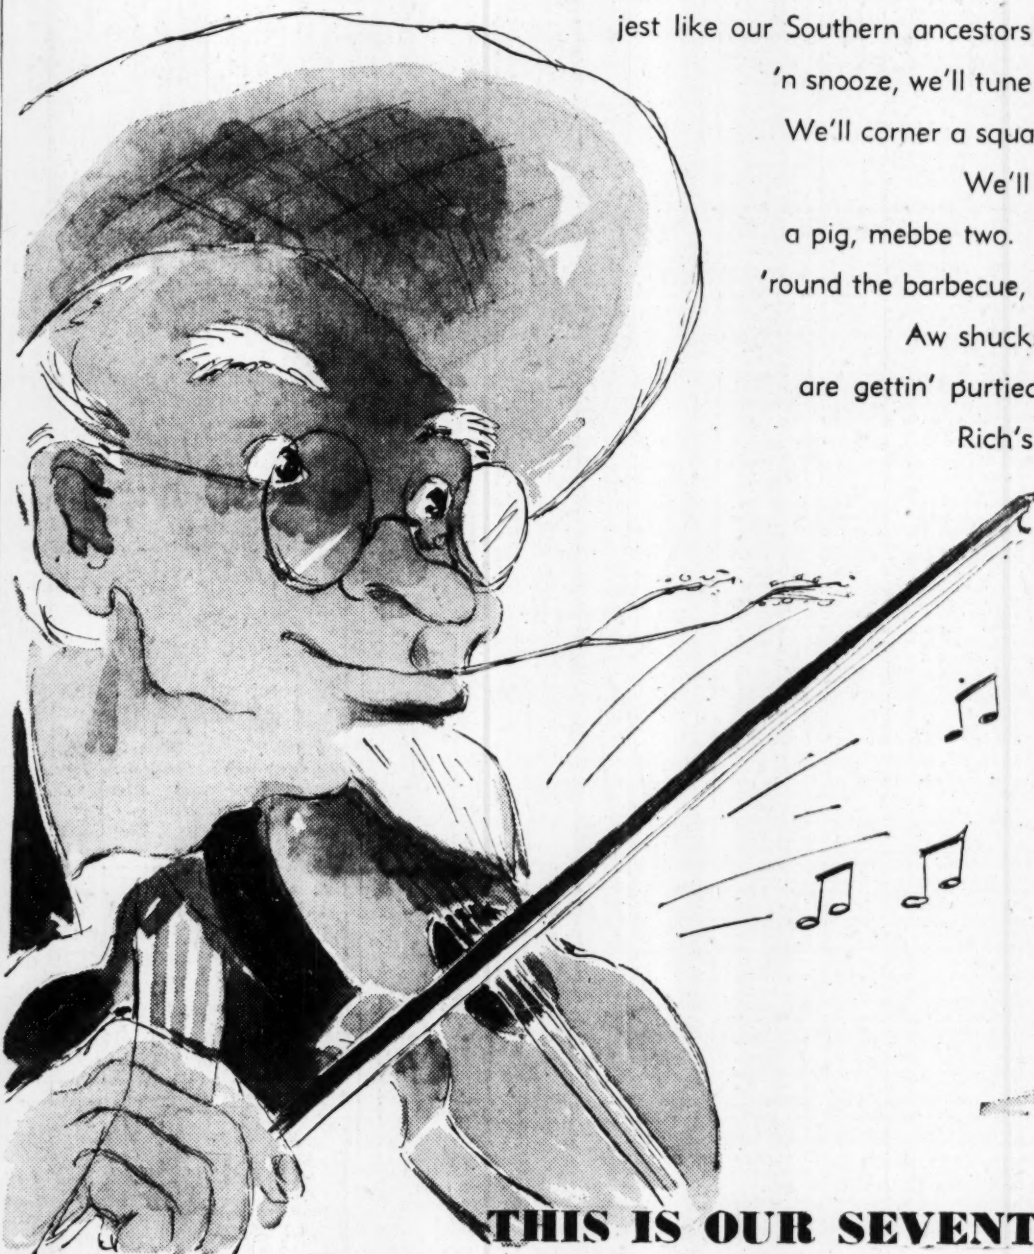

'round the barbecue, we'll kiss our sugars 'til they boo-hoo!

Aw shucks, who says that's mean? All the girls are gettin' purtied up for kisses right now at Rich's Drygoods Store on Broad Street!

P. S.: Better git yerself one of them elevators up to the 4th and 5th floors... to see all the furniture and fixins' from Highlands!

A More Attractive Home Is Wife's Best Bet To Hold Man's Attention

By Dixie George.

I am married and in my late thirties. I have been married for 15 years and everything went well for a few years and then my husband running around with other women, drinking and spending every penny he could get his hands on, and leaving me with the children and nothing at all.

I really think his brother was the first to start him on this bad act as he has always been wild and cruel to his wife and children. Always said it was their business. My husband never wanted me to go with him and enjoy life at all, but he can get him a gang of other men and women and stay out all night. He brings women's hats and gloves home in the car to prove that he had been riding with them and then tells me that he does not know where they come from.

He does not want me to ask him any questions about where he has been or anything. If I do he will curse me. Do you think I am too easy with him? He tells me he loves me, but I cannot see any way he proves it. I have been a wife to him in every way. Should I stay on and take life as it is or leave him? I love him but I am tired of the way he is doing.

MISTREATED.

Since you are making no stand against the way he is doing I would say that you are being a bit too easy with him. On the other hand, by ignoring them and the way he is treating you, you let him know that you do not care anything about the way he is acting. He has no right in the world to be so easy with him. You are just being a case of cutting off your nose to spite your face.

The smart thing for you to do is to find out about his affairs—if you are interested—without asking him. You could without much trouble.

Some men have a very poor way of proving their love for wives, funny way of showing it. I think and I agree with you that if your husband does love you he has a right to let you know that you are not depending upon him for all the good times in life, and that you can manage to get along without him. Could you start having some parties at home? Could you try to arrange to have the house filled with friends as much as possible and try to center your interest there, rather than where he is going? Perhaps if this could be arranged, he would find that home affairs offer far more to him than those outside. You know that old saying that the grass in the next pasture is always the greenest. Maybe he does not realize that he would have a good time at home and that you have charms that the other women haven't. You say you love him, and because you do, you will have to use your wits to keep him at home.

U. S. Navy Now Accepts False Teeth

By Damon Runyon

LOS ANGELES, June 29.—The happy tidings last week to the members of the plate-men of America were that dentures are no longer a bar to enlistment in the United States Navy. Dentures is the high-toned name for synthetic choppers, or false teeth.

It seems that thousands of plate-men have been turned down by the Navy recruiting officers since this war started because of a rule that an applicant had to have 20 sound teeth of the type provided by nature.

New Lieutenant Commander George I. Howe, head recruiter out here, announces that modifications in the requirements for oral fixtures have been effected to allow a wider enlistment range and as soon as this news was generally circulated, rejected plate-men started for the recruiting office with such speed that the breezes fairly sang through their crowns.

PLATES GOOD ENOUGH FOR THE ADMIRAL

The new order is a good thing for the Navy, not only because it will bring in numerous recruits, but because it will quell a gathering storm of protest from the many branches of the plate-men of America over what seemed to be the rankiest sort of discrimination. Investigation had developed that while union plate-men were barred from enlisting, there are many bakelite check racks among the higher offices of the Navy.

Close examination of photographs of some of our most distinguished admirals and other brass hats of the sea service disclosed that certain cast iron set of the kisser that characterizes the possessor of mail-order meat grinders, and the plate-men felt that what was good enough for the guy on the bridge was good enough for the lad between decks.

It is admitted by all thinking members of the plate-men that manufactured masticators represent a slight handicap in all branches of the Army except the Tank Corps, in which they are really a great convenience. A man's original teeth are soon jostled out in the tanks, so if he starts with factory fixtures he just remove them when the jostling begins and suffer no more ill consequences than having his lower lip pushed up over his nose.

THE DANGERS OF FALSE TEETH

But in other branches there is always danger to the plate-man that after he has set his balcony or orchestra out for the night, meaning his upper or lower, the Army may move suddenly, and before he can remember where he planted his nippers, a thousand to a friend of mine in the Argonne years ago.

He hid them under some blades of grass and one of our generals came along later and sat down on them and the fact that the general was subsequently mentioned in dispatches for the blood he shed on this occasion and ever afterwards was a wound stripe, never fully compensated my friend for the loss of his biter.

In the Navy, there is much less chance of a plate-man mislaying his teeth. Of course the ship might sink with them on board but in that case he would not need them anyway, especially if he had to swim around in the briny to any extent.

Sensible plate-men have long since discarded the noble gesture of dashing briskly over the sands and plunging headlong into the drink for the admiration of any fair observers, though that was once quite a vogue at Miami Beach, down in Dade county, Florida.

I well remember one season that a shark was caught off the Roney Plaza hotel and was found to have in its stomach nine platinum-lined nippers and a thousand dollars worth of false teeth.

Vitamin B for the Diabetes Patient

By Dr. William Brady.

Burn, fat, burn. That's the way you have to get rid of superfluous flesh, whether you reduce by dieting, medicine, ductless gland feeding, exercise, walking to work, doing your own housework, climbing trees, playing tennis, spading garden, distance running, flux or by "going into decline" (that is, fanning the latest spark of tuberculosis which is in most of us into active disease). No matter how the reduction is brought about the superfluous fat must be consumed by burning.

We may regard all obesity or accumulation of superfluous flesh, whether it be hypothyroid, hypothyroid or everyday nutritional obesity, as a condition directly due to poor combustion, slow oxidation rate, lowered metabolism, decreased absorption or utilization of oxygen. The vital fire doesn't burn as brightly as it should.

Deficiency of iodine in food and water, in many regions is one reason why the vital fire tends to smolder.

Another reason why the oxidation process tends to slow down is ultra-refinement of the modern diet which removes from natural food most of the vitamins. Universal shortage of vitamins manifests itself in poor metabolism. This applies especially to the combustion of carbohydrate material.

MY DAY: A Tribute To a Cousin

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Sunday.—On Friday afternoon the sad news was telephoned to me that my cousin, Mr. Henry Parish, had died very suddenly. When I was young he was always more than kind to me. Mrs. Parish is my godmother and my mother's double first cousin, so she always took great interest in me and in my younger brothers. My brother Hall and I spent many vacation months with them and Mr. Parish did a great deal to teach us to enjoy the out-of-doors.

Later, when I tried to master my own finances, he was patient with me. Though he could never quite teach me the intricacies of double entry bookkeeping, nor make me keep the kind of accounts which he thought were presentable, still he did a great deal to help me manage my own money. I owe him a debt of gratitude, not only for many good times, but for valuable discipline.

In the last years of his life, it must have been very difficult for him to accept many of the things for which my husband and I stood. Yet he was always sweet to me and ready to offer help if there was anything he could do of a personal nature.

I know that none of us has any idea of how many people he has helped and who have depended upon him, both in a business way and in his private life. None of the people who were close to him will know how much he did for them until they miss the little daily things which he did so unobtrusively. I have rarely known a more disciplined or more unselfish character and I am sure his influence will live long after him.

On Saturday morning I went to New York City and spent several hours with Mrs. Parish, and later caught a train to Washington. Since I took this trip somewhat unexpectedly, I had no reserved seat and felt very guilty for traveling on a weekend. I was more than fortunate to find a seat immediately next to a very nice young man, who was reading a magazine in which was an article by Alexander Dreier.

When I told the young man that I had met Mr. Dreier and we had talked about the situation in Germany, he was very much interested. After he left, a young woman came and sat beside me. She was on her way to her soldier husband.

It was the longest trip, she told me, that she had ever taken alone. Infantile paralysis at the age of four has left her slightly lame, but it has not dimmed her spirit and her fresh and pretty face. I hope her husband will be as proud and happy to see her as she is in accomplishing her surprise journey.

When prevention is so easy, why insist upon a cure when a child is still too immature to distinguish between acceptable and unacceptable behavior?

Greer Garson May Play Role of Queen Bess In Broadway Play

By Louella Parsons.

HOLLYWOOD, June 28.—(INS)—Thirty thousand dollars for a 20-page synopsis is enough to make any writer think he is dreaming. But it's a dream that came true for Arthur Bill Rankin, who had such a big idea for a Big Crosby picture. Paramount plunked down that amount for his brain child. "Dixie" is the title of the opus and it is based on the life and times of Daniel Decatur Emmett, famed minstrel who not only introduced minstrel shows but was the author of the stirring anthem south of the Macon-Dixon line—"Dixie."

Talk is that Fred Astaire will be Bing's co-starring partner in blackface, tapping along to such old favorite minstrel tunes as "Ain't We Got Fun?" "My Gal's a High-Born Lady" and "Walk Along Lady, Walk Along" as Bing sings them.

If Greer Garson ever turned on the charm full force to get her way, she's doing it now trying to get Head Man Louis B. Mayer's permission to do "Queen Elizabeth" on Broadway this fall. Can you imagine anyone more perfect than red-haired Greer, who even looks like pictures of the tempestuous Elizabeth? Another strong factor in her doing this show is that it will be directed by her old friend, Margaret Webster, the stage director's daughter of Dame May Whitty. Miss Webster directed the last stage show Greer did in London, "Old Music," and it was she who sent her play, based on

Good Queen Bess, to La Garson on the set of "Random Harvest."

Arturo de Cordova, the Clark Gable of Mexico, has finally succumbed to Hollywood movies and will play an important part in "For Whom the Bell Tolls," at Paramount. You have only to visit Mexico to know how he stands in the affections of the people there. Arturo is one of Mexico's best actors. His best known Mexican pictures are "The Count of Monte Cristo" and one that he made with Lupe Velez and one with Margo.

And still they come—these stories inspired by the Women's Auxiliary Army Corps. Henry Koster is the latest to toss his production hat in the ring with "Army Women," which he will produce, and maybe direct, for Universal. Some time ago Columbia announced "Petticoat Army" and "Son of a Soldier"—both all-female casts dealing with women in the Army. It looks like Diana Barrymore will inherit the top feminine role, supported, of course, by the female army "U" will recruit.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: It isn't Errol Flynn's heart that is keeping him from military service. The real truth about Errol's condition, which he has been reluctant to admit, is lung trouble. His doctor has ordered that the minute he finishes "Gentleman Jim Corbett" and the present investigation involving the birthday party fight between his stand-in, James Fleming, and Barbara Hutton's "borrowed" butler, Flynn must go to Arizona for six months of complete rest.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: The Madeleine Le Beaumarcet Dali divorce suit comes up Wednesday; Alice Faye leaves July 7 to join Phil Harris in Chicago, and she'll remain east until September. The baby isn't going along, but Alice will make flying trips back to see her; after eight years of married life, the Will Osborns (he's the orchestra leader) are staking a trial separation hoping things can be patched up before a divorce; M-G-M. is dickering with Duke Ellington to replace Cab Calloway in "Cabin in the Sky"; Carmen Miranda's version of "Chattanooga Choo Choo" in Portuguese was so hot on the "Springtimes in the Rockies" set that two fuses blew out—well, for publicity purposes, anyway.

Miss Adelene Barnett Weds Dr. W. M. Watts in Asheville

ASHEVILLE, N. C., June 29.—Miss Adelene Barnett became the bride of Dr. Walter M. Watts Jr. at a brilliant ceremony solemnized at 8:30 o'clock this evening in the First Presbyterian church, of Asheville.

Rev. Grier Davis officiated in a setting of palms and woodwardia fern, which formed a background for spikes of white larkspur and gladioli arising from Grecian urns. A myriad of branched candelabra holding white tapers completed the decorations.

During the ceremony solos were sung by Emmett Jordan Davis, uncle of the groom, accompanied by Miss Marguerite Smathers Jones, organist.

Ushers were John N. Davis, of Asheville, cousin of the groom; Richard F. Davis, of Asheville; Dr. George D. Page, of Greenwood, S. C.; the groom's roommate at Emory Medical school, and Jack Jackson, of Atlanta.

Miss Margaret Fearington, of Hickory, N. C., was her cousin's maid of honor. She was gowned in daffodil yellow marquisette fashioned with bishop sleeves and a bodice of matching tulle. She carried a bouquet of blue delphinium and shasta daisies, which harmonized with the tulle of flowers worn in her hair.

Mrs. J. Waters Ross, of Summerville, Ga., the bride's cousin, was matron of honor, and bridesmaids were Misses Jean Wagner and Sterling Nettles, both of Asheville. They were gowned like the maid of honor, and their bouquets were similar to hers.

The lovely young bride entered with her father, Albert Nunnally Barnett, and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Charles MacArthur, of Asheville. The bride was never lovelier than in her exquisite wedding gown of white slipper satin fashioned with a long train, and trimmed with heirloom rosepoint lace. Her tulle veil fell from a coronet of heirloom lace, and she carried a bouquet of white orchids showered with stephanotis. Her only ornament was a lavalier of seed pearls strung on horsehair, and mounted on mother of pearl, a gift of the groom, having been in his family for generations.

Mrs. Barnett wore for her daughter's wedding a gown of blue chiffon with orchids. The groom's mother, Mrs. Helen Neely Watts, wore pink mouseline de soie inset with black Alencon lace, and accented by a shoulder spray of lavender orchids.

The bride's parents were hosts at a reception after the wedding at the Battery Park hotel. Receiving with them were Miss Ruth Watts, aunt of the groom, and members of the wedding party.

Assisting in entertaining were Miss Miriam Hallman, of Atlanta, cousin of the bride; Misses Julia Nelson Hips and Sarah Howie, of Asheville, cousin of the groom; Mary Pat Burdette, Virginia Griffin and Elise Cowie, of this city.

The bride's table was overlaid with a lace cloth and centered with a three-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bouquet of flowers like those forming the bridesmaids' bouquets.

The bridal couple left for a wedding trip to the mountains of western North Carolina. Mrs. Watts wearing for traveling a yellow silk jersey model with a matching linen hat and a shoulder cluster of white orchids. Upon their return they will reside at 826 Peachtree, Atlanta, where they will be prominent acquisitions to the young married contingent.

Out-of-town guests attending the nuptials were Mrs. Joseph C. Cornell, Mrs. Hollis Lamar Puckett, Macon, Ga.; Miss Sarah Milford Curry, Greenwood, S. C.; Mrs. Harry B. Wells and Miss Patricia Wells, Knoxville, Tenn.; Mrs. A. F. Hallman, grandmother of the bride, and Mrs. Carl Dodd, aunt of the bride, both of Atlanta; Mr. and Mrs. John Hallman Jr., of Columbus, Ga.; Ernest Barnett, uncle of bride, and Mrs. Seneca Burr, both of Decatur, Ala.; Mrs. Herbert Gardner, of New York city; Miss Louise Dooly and Miss Leslie Carnagy, of Atlanta.

Thiot-Strawn Wedding Performed.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., June 29.—On the afternoon of June 27 at the First Baptist church here, Miss Mildred Flounour Thiot, attractive daughter of Mrs. Richard Wyll Thiot and the late Rev. Thiot, of Brunswick, was married to Herbert Clay Strawn, of Brunswick, formerly of Atlanta. The ceremony was performed at 6 o'clock by Rev. John Haldeman.

Mrs. Bertha A. Stevenson, at the organ, presented music. Spence Smith sang.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Pierce Thiot, wore a floor-length gown of pastel blue marquisette trimmed with a beading insertion run through with blue velvet ribbon. The bride wore a fingertip-length veil of blue tulle held her hair with a spray of stephanotis, and she carried a white Bible showered with stephanotis.

The bride was attended by her little nieces, Betty Ann Brown, of Jacksonville, as junior bridesmaid and Sandra Thiot Shaver of this city, as flower girl. They wore dresses of yellow tulle, with matching veils of tulle, and they carried old-fashioned nosegays.

Mark Willard, of Charleston, S. C., served as Mr. Strawn's best man, and Emmett Moreland, of Savannah, and Jimmie Wallace were ushers.

The couple left during the evening for a wedding trip, after which they will reside at Willetta Oaks here.

Mr. Strawn, the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Strawn, of Atlanta, is a graduate of Georgia Tech and is associated with Daniels Construction Corporation in Brunswick.

MRS. ALTON GLENN BURDETTE.

Miss Mabel Jenkins Becomes Bride of Alton G. Burdette

Miss Florence Mable Jenkins, daughter of Mrs. Mirrice E. Jenkins, became the bride of Alton Glenn Burdette, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Burdette, at a ceremony solemnized yesterday morning at 11 o'clock at the home of the groom's maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Tarrant. Rev. Neil E. Truesdale, pastor of the A. V. A. Presbyterian church, officiated.

The home was decorated throughout with garden flowers and ferns. The vows were spoken before an improvised altar of white flowers and palms.

Theron Cheetek acted as best man and Mrs. A. R. Kidd, of Charleston, S. C., was the matron of honor. Her becoming costume was completed by a spray of sweet peas and bridal wreath.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Tarrant, of Birmingham, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jenkins, of Union, S. C.; Mrs. Roy Jenkins, of Montgomery, Ala.

The bride wore a modish street frock of violet silk with a matching hat and white accessories. Her only ornament was an aquamarine necklace and she carried a Bible, gifts from her father, the late J. W. Jenkins. Her flowers were a shoulder spray of sweetheart roses, bridal wreath and valley lilies.

An informal reception followed the ceremony, the bride's table having been centered with the tiered wedding cake. The couple left immediately afterward on their wedding trip to the mountains of North Carolina.

'Little Steel' Wage Increase Wins Support

WASHINGTON, June 29.—(AP) A War Labor Board panel report in the "Little Steel" cases today strongly supported a wage increase, "union security" in the form of a maintenance-of-membership clause, and the company check-off of union dues.

The three-man panel did not specify the amount of increase it believed justified. It said the buying power of the earnings of the steel worker had decreased about 13.3 per cent since the last general change of wage rates in the industry.

The case affects about 157,000 employees of Bethlehem, Republic and Inland Steel companies, and Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company.

The panel submitted "findings" rather than recommendations. The board will hear oral argument at a public hearing on Wednesday before considering a decision.

Members of the panel were Arthur S. Meyer, chairman of the New York state board of mediation, representing the public; Cyrus S. Ching, vice president of the United States Rubber Company, representing employers, and Richard T. Frankenstein, representing labor. The dispute has been in the panel's hands since the second week of February.

A TIMELY SUGGESTION TO DISCOURAGED HOME SEEKERS

AFTER all—the best way of getting a home that is planned and managed by you, on a lot the size and shape you prefer, is to BUILD YOUR OWN.

THE restraint on building that has been placed on production will not continue forever. The emergency may end sooner than you expect.

BEGIN now to anticipate this event. Get a choice of lots at present low prices.

YOU can safely buy a lot in LENOX PARK, while waiting to build, because the planning and management by the owners have established CHARACTER and VALUE that will be sustained for many years.

For a limited time, we offer the following inducing items:

As little as $200.00 down and $25.00 a month. No interest charges or taxes until 1944.

PHONE the downtown office of LENOX PARK, Walnut 1745, for appointment to inspect lots in this Distinctive Home Community.

Pilot Faints, Plane Flies Self For an Hour

Girl Later Revives, Glides Ship to Earth, Escapes Injury.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., June 29. (P)—An airplane with an unconscious pilot inside circled the Ann Arbor city airport crazily for an hour last night while spectators below watched in frozen fright.

Miss Joan Tesh, 19, of Ann Arbor, an employee of the Willow Run bomber plant, took the ship aloft in the early evening and fainted while still in the air.

With the rudder and elevator fixed so it would go in approximately level circles, the plane continued to fly. Robert Young, an airport instructor, took another ship up and saw that Miss Tesh was unconscious at the controls. Dwight Reynolds, airport manager, confirmed the fear, but was helpless.

For almost 60 minutes, Reynolds said, the plane continued its wild perambulations. Then the girl revived.

Two efforts at landing were unsuccessful, and as she was about to try a third, her gasoline supply ran out. She glided the plane to a stop in a field at Ellsworth road and State, striking a fence in the effort.

Miss Tesh stepped out of the cabin, uninjured, and fainted again. She was treated for shock in St. Joseph's mercy hospital today.

The plane was injured only slightly. The girl had four hours of solo flying time before last night.

Officers Installed By Rotary Clubs

Robert L. Foreman Jr., president, and other officers were installed yesterday at the meeting of the Rotary Club of Atlanta. The officers were elected two months ago.

Besides Foreman, the new officers were Theodore M. Forbes, vice president; William A. Dobson, second vice president; Richard P. Smith, secretary; and Rex Neely, sergeant-at-arms.

Only 3,000 Attending Annual Shrine Parley

Imperial Potentate Thomas C. Law, of Atlanta, estimated 3,000 members in addition to delegates from 159 temples were on hand yesterday as the annual Shrine convention got under way in Chicago. Shrine conventions usually attract 10,000 members.

Law said the main business centered around activities to help America win the war. Albert H. Fiebach, of Cleveland, Ohio, is scheduled to succeed Law as imperial potentate.

'Bugs' Baer Says:

Bombers have made the battleboat as obsolete as your grandma's bustle. Congress has discarded them both.

The flat-top beehive takes its spot vacated by the thunderscow.

Flat-tops are Navy for airplane carrier. You can build 300 bombers at $300,000 each for the catalogue price of one 45,000-ton battlebarge.

Six bombers will take care of one battle-ship as easy as knocking over your toothbrush glass in the dark.

Coral Sea and Midway have proved that as accurate as a steel yardstick. Well, they say the longest way round is the shortest way home. But not with an A-gasoline card.

Serious Wrongs In Schools Cited By Dr. Haskew

Need of Better Teachers, Lack of Money Stressed by Educator.

By DR. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT.

Georgia school teachers are forsaking the teaching profession for other employment, not alone that they may make more money, but that they may make more money and at the same time maintain their self-respect, according to statements made yesterday by Dr. L. D. Haskew, president of the Georgia Education Association and faculty member at Emory University, in an address before the Atlanta Methodist Ministers' Association.

Dr. Haskew said that, about a year ago, there came a sudden halt in the desire of teachers to improve themselves. Evidence of this sudden halt is observed in the fact that, where normally 3,500 Georgia teachers take summer courses, this year there are fewer than 500 teachers taking such courses, with one-fourth of the number enrolled for such courses at Emory University.

Three serious wrongs were cited by Dr. Haskew in Georgia's educational set up. The need of better teachers was emphasized, and the urgent need for Georgia citizens to be sold on the value of true education and made to realize its essential power for these times and those to come. Lack of money was stressed as the third wrong. "Fifty per cent of Georgia's school children are taught by teachers whose annual income is $600. If that amount were doubled Georgia's salaries for teachers would still be below the national average by 5 per cent. More than 100,000 of Georgia's school children are in buildings that have been condemned by the State Health Board," said Dr. Haskew.
